'Now, This Medal Is For the Boer War . . .'

Youthful wonder and admiration shine in the eyes of 10-year-old Barry Scott, 1403 Bewdley, as he hears about medals worn by Samuel Murray, 72, 1408 Beatty. Mr. Murray wears decorations earned in Boer War and two World Wars. Barry is a member of Rainbow

Magsaysay New President Of Philippines

Announces All-Out Fight on Communism

MANILA (UP)—President Elpidio Quirino conceded defeat here today as mounting returns indicated that voters who think "it's time for a change" had elected Ramon Magsaysay, new president of the Philippines, by a margin of nearly 2½ to 1.

Returns representing about 60 per cent of the total vote showed the victorious Nationalist candidate leading by 1,815,188 votes to 798,022. Mounting congressional returns indicated that Magsaysay will have strong support in the Senate and probably will control the House of Representatives.

Quirino, in conceding, offered Magsaysay his "good wishes," and wryly offered "a prayer... that the change is for the better."

President-elect Magsaysay expressed thanks for the outgoing president's good wishes, and called on "all Filipinos to work together as one people."

Magsaysay promptly sought to recruit former ambassador to the United States Carlos P. Romulo for his new administration, asking whether he would like to return to the Washington post. Romulo withdrew from the presidential race to throw the support of his democratic party to Magsaysay.

UNCONDITIONAL

The president-elect said his government will do its best to convince other Asiatic nations "that there can be neither 'independence' nor 'neutrality' in the face of aggressive Soviet imperialism in Asia."

Magsaysay said his regime will deal with Reds "on the basis of 'all-out force and all-out fellowship'—slogan recalling his campaign as defense secretary against Communist guerrillas here.

"Militant Communism and its armed challenge to the authority of the republic must be forced into unconditional surrender," he said.

Magsaysay said he favors the idea of a "Pacific pact" in principle, but sees no likelihood of any such alignment coming into being in the near future because of a lack of "community interest" among Asiatic nations.

Magsaysay plans to visit the United States before the end of November, an aide said today.

Eisenhowers Leave For Ottawa Visit

American Writer Paints Glowing Picture of What President to See

WASHINGTON (UP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower will leave by train today for a three-day trip to Ottawa.

Mr. Eisenhower is scheduled to address the Canadian House of Commons Nov. 14. The Eisenhowers are due to arrive in Ottawa at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

The following dispatch by a well-known writer of the New York Herald Tribune gives an American's view of what President Eisenhower will find on his Canadian visit.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON.—When President Eisenhower visits Ottawa tomorrow and Saturday, the Canadians will undoubtedly be asking him a number of anxious questions—about the St. Lawrence Seaway, about the balance of Canadian-American trade, about lower tariffs.

What will be equally interesting will be the kind of questions which Mr. Eisenhower may want to ask the Canadians and his host, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, and his cabinet colleagues are likely to give.

When Mr. Eisenhower brooks over his own problems of delayed tax reduction, the mounting national debt and a still unbalanced federal budget, he can hardly fail to ask himself: How do they do it just across the border?

Have no doubt about it—Canada has done it and the President's face will certainly light up when he has a chance to take a first-hand look at the Canadian record—at the prudent, disciplined way the Canadian Government has ordered its finances while faced with exactly the same post-war and Korean-war problems as we have had here in the United States.

TRUMAN REFUSES TO BE CALLED

Former President Will Ignore Subpoena From Un-American Committee Over White Case

NEW YORK (AP)—Former President Truman said today he will not heed a subpoena to appear Friday before the House of Representatives un-American activities committee.

In a letter to committee chairman Harold Velde, Rep. Ill, which Truman read to a press conference today, he said:

"In spite of my personal willingness to co-operate with you, I am constrained by my duties to the people of the United States to decline to reply."

New Parliament Warned Huge Arms Costs Stay

THIRD TRAFFIC DEATH

Indian Killed In Car Crash

Ignatius Pelky Dies on Pat Bay Highway;
Two Dead in Goldstream Smash-Up

Death of an East Saanich Indian, Ignatius Pelky, early today brought to three the total of violent deaths in the Victoria area over the Armistice Day holiday, and to seven the province-wide accident toll.

A fourth Island man, Ernest Anderson, 45-year-old Campbell River logger, died on a hunting trip of natural causes.

The Victoria death total rose to three when Pelky, 40, member of a well-known Indian family, died in hospital at 6:20 a.m. today. He was flung from a car wrecked on the Patricia Bay Highway, early Wednesday morning.

Killed in a violent collision shortly before 5 p.m. Tuesday on the Goldstream Hill, Island Highway, were:

Stanly John Cross, 46, of 132 Dallas Road, a shipping agent for George Paulin Ltd.

Donald B. Johnston, 34, a Canadian customs officer and RCMP veteran who lived at 810 Metchosin.

Still in St. Joseph's Hospital today in "very poor condition," is Lester B. Jones, 59, of 2571 Blackwood, critically injured in the same accident. He had not regained consciousness at press time today.

FLUNG FROM CAR

The record which cannot fail to fascinate the President and make him wonder if it is not, perhaps, done with mirrors, is this:

Canada balanced its budget in 1947, 1948, 1949, 1950, 1951, 1952, and again this year.

Canada had revenue surpluses throughout this whole period.

Ottawa has used its surpluses mostly to reduce the debt and has brought the debt down from a postwar peak of $13,000,000,000 to under $11,000,000,000. Canadian defense spending has risen from $425,000,000 annually pre-Korea to $2,000,000,000 annually post-Korea—currently 12 per cent of the national income.

On top of all this the Canadian parliament was able to carry through modest tax cuts twice this past year, some in January and some in July.

That's not bad. To President Eisenhower and other American visitors it must seem very good. And the Canadians would offer the president the following explanation of how these achievements were brought about:

FOUR DEAD ON MAINLAND

By CANADIAN PRESS

Four persons met violent death in Remembrance Day holiday accidents on the British Columbia mainland.

Two women lost their lives in traffic accidents. A child was drowned and an unidentified man was burned to death in a Vancouver fire.

Dead are:

Miss Ada Trevitt, 26, of Ladner, killed in a head-on collision near her home.

Mrs. Elsie Turner, 46, killed in a traffic mishap near Trail.

Brian Erle, three, of Kelowna, drowned in five inches of water in Mill Creek near his home.

An unidentified man burned to death in a house fire in downtown Vancouver.

Miss Trevitt died when the car in which she was riding collided with another car at 2:30 p.m. Wednesday at Westminster Highway and Linden Drive, outside Ladner.

Mrs. Turner, who lived at Beaver Falls, was attempting to cross the Trail-Fruitvale Highway when she was struck by a car. She was dead on arrival at Trail-Tadanac Hospital. RCMP are investigating.

Young Brian Erle drowned at dusk Tuesday in Mill Creek, near his Kelowna home. Two playmates told a woman passer-by that "Brian's in the water." She found him lying in five inches of water.

An old Vancouver house eluded the wrecker's hammer Wednesday in a blaze that took the life of an unknown man. The dead man is believed to be a vagrant who had taken overnight refuge in the partially dismantled building. Fire and police officials are investigating the fire that broke out three separate times before it was finally extinguished.

Canada Founds Station For Sighting 'Saucers'

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada has launched a highly-technical research program to learn whether the earth has had interplanetary visitors during the last few years.

A laboratory and its maze of elaborate electronic equipment is expected to be in operation within a few days.

The Defense Research Board is co-operating with the transport department in the experiment.

W. B. Smith, engineer in charge, said the laboratory "is being built in the hope of finding out something tangible about flying saucers." If flying saucers actually exist "the equipment in the laboratory should be able to detect them."

Throne Speech Stresses Demands of Defense

OTTAWA (BUP)—The opening of the first session of today forecast an indefinite level of federal defense spending.

"Much remains to be done before there can be a permanent and durable peace in the world," the speech, read to the Senate and House of Commons by Governor-General Vincent Massey, said.

"My ministers therefore consider it would be unwise for the free nations to slacken our efforts to build up and maintain the necessary strength to deter aggression and they intend to continue to work to that end."

In the field of legislation the speech announced measures to compensate Ontario farmers for losses due to cholera, encourage modernization of Atlantic coast fishing methods, and secure wider markets for the fishery products.

Other measures outlined in the speech would revamp the administration of the Yukon and Northwest Territories in recognition of their increased "strategic importance," give the Board of Transport Commissioners jurisdiction over international and interprovincial oil investigating.

Young Brian Erle drowned at dusk Tuesday in Mill Creek, near his Kelowna home. Two playmates told a woman passer-by that "Brian's in the water." She found him lying in five inches of water.

An old Vancouver house eluded the wrecker's hammer Wednesday in a blaze that took the life of an unknown man. The dead man is believed to be a vagrant who had taken overnight refuge in the partially dismantled building. Fire and police officials are investigating the fire that broke out three separate times before it was finally extinguished.

Bank Act, Criminal Code Revisions

The routine revisions of the Bank Act and the Criminal Code also were announced.

In the international field the speech expressed the hope that a political conference ultimately would succeed in restoring peace in Korea. Canada's continued interest in international projects designed to promote human welfare and thereby remove "some of the causes of unrest and dislocation" was stressed.

It said Parliament would be asked to approve "further assistance for relief and rehabilitation and for continued participation in the Colombo Plan."

Mention was made of the effectiveness of the NATO alliance in preventing aggression in Europe, and the treaty was declared "one of the foundation stones of Canada's external policy."

In an economic view, the speech referred to the fact that the country's total volume of foreign trade was at record levels. The renewal of the Geneva tariff concessions was noted.

The formula will be presented to a meeting of union local representatives here to night.

Involved in the strike are 4,200 unionists in eight coastal paper and pulp mills. The majority approved strike action in a vote.

Union members voted after turning down a company wage increase offer of 5 cents an hour. The union sought a 10 per cent increase in a basic $1.50 hourly wage.

The formula will be presented to a meeting of union local representatives here to night.

Massey Heads Colorful Ceremony

Governor-General Massey opened parliament today in a colorful state ceremony.

A few hours before the speech was read, Louis-Rene Beaudoin, Liberal member for Vaudreuil-Soulanges, was elected speaker of the Commons.

Canada-U.S. Establish Joint Trade Committee

Economic Affairs To Be Discussed

OTTAWA (CP)—Canada and the United States today established a joint committee on trade and economic affairs in an attempt to forestall future friction and promote greater trade between the two countries.

The unprecedented step to promote a "healthy" flow of trade across the Canada-U.S. border was completed in a signing ceremony at Washington this morning. Ambassador A. D. P. Heaney signed for Canada; State Secretary Dulles for the U.S.

On the committee, which will consider all matters "affecting the harmonious economic relations between the two countries," will be Canada's External Affairs Minister Pearson, Trade Minister Howe, Finance Minister Abbott, and either Agriculture Minister Gardner or Fisheries Minister Sinclair.

American members will include Mr. Dulles, Treasury Secretary Humphrey, Agriculture Secretary Benson, and Commerce Secretary Weeks.

MAYBE OTHERS

Other cabinet members from both countries may be designated to act on the committee from time to time, especially if their field of jurisdiction is affected by any problem developing between the two countries.

Major reason for the committee, first proposed during Prime Minister St. Laurent's visit to President Eisenhower in Washington last May, is to prevent recurrence of any embarrassing trade friction on either side.

For example, U.S. import curbs on dairy products brought a rash of protests not only from Canada but from other countries selling these products in the U.S. There was even talk at one time of Canada retaliating against American goods, but so far no action has been taken.

FAIR-REACHING POLICIES

Officials here said that once the new committee starts functioning, fair-reaching economic policies may be hammered out. These policies, though not legally binding on either country, likely will spell down through administrative ranks, bringing the two countries closer together in outlook on multilateral trade and elimination of tariff impediments frustrating the free world.

INTOLERABLE INTRUSION IN POLITICAL AFFAIRS

Scot Socialist Paper Calls Philip 'The Royal Meddler'

EDINBURGH (Reuters)—The Labor will fight the government Scottish Socialist weekly, for in the new session of Parliament, today called the Duke of Edinburgh "the royal meddler" and attacked him for "an intolerable intrusion into political affairs."

In an article entitled "Royal Meddler" it was referred to a speech on education the duke made last week while being installed as chancellor of Edinburgh University. He spoke of draft service in the armed forces as a "very important character-building experience."

Forward countered: "The question of national service is one of the many issues on which

DISTRAUGHT MOTHER BELIEVES MISSING CHILDREN KIDNAPPED

FRAMINGHAM, Mass. (UPI)—Authorities planned a house-to-house check today in the search for two small children who vanished from their home last Sunday.

Police hoped that by questioning residents of the neighborhood they could find someone who remembered seeing Thomas Gilmore, eight, and his sister, Carol Ann, seven, since their disappearance. The youngsters were last reported seen playing near their home in mid-afternoon, hours before their disappearance was realized and reported.

Investigators also said the door-to-door check would afford a means of searching cesspools, tool-sheds, garages and other buildings that are little-used.

Mrs. Dora Gilmore, mother of the missing children, who is separated from her husband, believes they have been kidnapped.

Toronto Man Finds Buyer For Eye So He Can Get House

MALTON, Ont. (UPI)—A Toronto man who offered to sell his eyes to obtain money to buy a home "because blindness is better than breaking up the family" received a bid from a prospective buyer today.

John Dumont said he would be interested in buying an eye from Bruce Martin of Toronto because his sight is beginning to fail.

Dumont, operator of a furnace business, said he was interested in only one eye because "I wouldn't want any one to become blind—so that I could see, I know what blindness can mean."

He has only five per cent vision in one eye and nothing in the other. Dumont said his sight began to fail two years ago.

The prospective purchaser said he didn't know the price for an eye, but he thought he could raise sufficient money to buy it.

Nursing Home Removes Last Snag Blocking $400,000 Building Plan

The last snag holding up construction of an addition to the Victoria Nursing Home, to cost nearly $400,000, is believed to have been removed by the offer of the home's directors to purchase from the city of Victoria for $3,250 required land adjacent to their site.

City Council was scheduled to authorize the land sale at a meeting this afternoon.

F. E. Winslow, chairman of the Nursing Home Board, said that his board would wait until it had clear title to the property before ordering construction of making a sale for less than the assessed value.

Farmer Construction Ltd. submitted the lowest tender. Its bid was $397,513.76.

The nursing home needs the city property since the planned addition runs over the present property line.

The nursing home first offered $1,000 to the city for its property, but was refused by the lands committee when some question arose over the legality of the proposed exchange.

The nursing home directors were opposed to that scheme since they felt the home would be losing the most valuable part of its property.

Cost of building the new nursing home is to be financed on a three-way basis with the city, the province and the federal government each assuming an equal share.

CRITICS FEEL PRIDE AND ELATION

Robin Wood Recital Hailed As Best Since Solomon's Visit

By AUDREY ST. D. JOHNSON

An unaffected young Victoria pianist, Wednesday night, stepped onto the stage of the Victoria High School where he had last appeared seven years ago, and took his near-capacity audience by storm.

As much has been heard of Robin Wood's growing reputation in Great Britain and Europe, his appearance here was eagerly anticipated. And this was an occasion when realization was not staled by anticipation. For the artist had so much more to give than could possibly be imagined beforehand that even the most exacting critics were carried away on a wave of pride and elation.

This was, without doubt, piano playing of the highest order: a performance so rare in musical qualities, that many were saying, not without justification, that they had experienced nothing like it since Solomon played here. The recital was under the auspices of the Victoria Musical Art Society.

From the first deep notes of the Bach-Busoni Chaconne, one was enchanted by the full singing tone and this never at any moment failed the pianist, whether he was producing tremendous double fortés or a tender, whispering pianissimo. Mr. Wood is apparently incapable of producing an unmusical tone and the gradations of color at his command are a revelation.

'Resign!' Cry Labor MPs As Tories Beaten

Churchill Forces Lose Minor Vote

LONDON (UP)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill's Conservative government on Wednesday night suffered embarrassing but unimportant parliamentary defeat, its first since taking office in 1951.

The defeat came when the opposition Labor party forced a vote on a minor motion which a Conservative introduced and then tried to withdraw. The vote took place after a long session and after many Conservatives had gone home.

Labor members defeated 145 to 141 a motion to end import controls over certain types of glassware, and then shouted "resign!"

But there was virtually no chance that the government would quit.

Labourite Herbert Morrison demanded that the government state its view in the defeat which he said showed a lack of confidence in the Conservative ministers.

However, Peter Thorneycroft, president of the Board of Trade, replied for the government and said he didn't think the vote affected the present position of the cabinet.

Observers considered the vote accidental. Churchill said twice in the past two months that he would not call elections this year or next.

pianissimo seemed breathed forth from the instrument freely and without effort. This pure, disembodied tone enhances the spiritual quality to consistently noticeable, throughout the evening.

The pianist's great flexibility and sensitive perception make him an ideal interpreter of Chopin and this group, the Mazurka in F minor, Nocturne in D flat and Scherzo in E were delightful, rhythmically vital, romantic, tender; the Scherzo particularly, delicate, flirtatious, flashing with fiery brilliance.

Mr. Wood permitted himself a most dazzling exhibition of pure virtuosity at the close of the program, with Prokofiev's striking Toccata.

Again in this modern group which included Ibert's "Little White Donkey" and "Pastourelle" of Poulenc, the pianist proved himself a thoughtful and deeply sincere musician whose impressive technical equipment is the means by which he brings his listeners to a true well of music and there refreshes them.

RESIGNATION ACCEPTED

In Tel Aviv, Israel, today, plans were under way to reorganize the government after the Mapai Party central committee accepted with "deep regret" Premier David Ben-Gurion's (above) resignation. Ben-Gurion fixed no date for his resignation. He is waiting until an accord has been negotiated with the other parties in order to facilitate a smooth transition.

Mr. St. Laurent and the Senate

MR. ST. LAURENT CHOSE wisely in appointing Mrs. Nancy Hodges to the Senate. But there are still 12 Senate vacancies and some of them have been left unfilled for a rather long time. It is difficult to understand why the Prime Minister has not filled them before now.

Under the Canadian constitution every province is entitled to a fixed number of Senators. When Mr. St. Laurent leaves any province without its legal quota he shows a curious disrespect for the Senate; as if it were of no account, as if the provinces care nothing for it, as if it were a convenience to be used or disregarded.

Misrepresentation

PREMIER BENNETT HAS clearly misrepresented his new liquor tax. When he told his followers last week that the 10 per cent tax was only an increase of 7 per cent over that already applied on the purchase of a bottle, he disclosed a type of arithmetic which must cause widespread alarm.

The club manager buying a bottle for resale as drinks by the glass avoids the 3 per cent sales tax charged on private purchases from the liquor vendor, but must add the 10 per cent tax to the sale per drink.

A $4.50 bottle of rye containing 25 ounces and selling at 35 cents per one-ounce drink, consequently returns $8.75 and the 10 per cent tax must be levied on that total—a tax of 87½ cents.

The tippler's tax, 87½ cents on a $4.50 bottle, amounts to 19 per cent of the bottle's cost at the vendors. It further represents an increase of 625 per cent over the 14 cents paid for a bottle under the old 3 per cent tax.

Mr. Bennett, who makes a practice of denouncing opponents for alleged misrepresentation, has been extremely careless with his figures on the liquor tax—careless, if a charitable construction is to be placed on his remarks.

The public expects exaggeration on the hustings. But it will countenance no such clear-cut misinterpretation of tax increases. If the Premier has provided so improper a picture on the liquor tax, what credence can be placed in his explanations on the finances of the province in general?

15 Per Cent Still Needed

GREATER VICTORIA TO DATE has provided almost 85 per cent of the $210,686 set as the 1953 objective of the Community Chest. That leaves roughly $35,000 still to be collected if the campaign is to reach its target.

A special team of canvassers will exert themselves to bring in that amount. The urgency of meeting the objective should be readily understood by the citizens. The $210,686 is required to ensure the operation of 16 services unimpaired next year, but the success of the drive carries more significance than that.

In recent years the Community Chest has failed to provide adequate funds. As a result, various agencies have been forced to operate on restricted budgets—budgets cut below the minimum requirements set by various boards to do the jobs the agencies are expected to do.

When the objective has been reached this year, uncertainty will be removed, future years' financing will be simplified as a growing number of people follow payroll deduction and other installment forms of helping the agencies, and further consideration may be given to the plan to combine all major public appeals in the one campaign.

A large number of Greater Victorians have recognized their responsibility to look after their own people. Those who have delayed their contributions are asked to forward them as soon as possible. Those who are able to supplement their previous donations are asked to give more now.

A Diplomatic Blunder?

THE ANGLO-AMERICAN DECISION to withdraw from Trieste and turn Zone A over to Italy could scarcely have come at a more disconcerting time. It is true that the unsatisfactory Trieste situation has continued for too long; that Russian delay in agreeing to appointment of a governor under U.N. sponsorship had prevented implementation of the postwar arrangements for this trouble spot. But the turmoil resulting from the recent withdrawal announcement has created far more complications than the long-lasting "temporary" condition that has existed since the war.

Yugoslavia has been seriously provoked by the western intention to give Italy control of the Zone A area. The working arrangement between the west and the Mediterranean communist nation has been upset. On the other hand, Italy's tooting but pro-west government has been antagonized by incidents arising from the Trieste decision, and in addition has been placed in a dangerous position.

Whether it was merely poor timing by the Allies, or whether some anticipated favorable factor failed to develop, the result has been a serious setback to western plans. A chronic sore spot has received added irritation, threatening a spread of the malady.

One of the immediate effects has been the outbreak of rioting in Trieste. British Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden defended the action of security troops in firing on the mob, pointing out the severe provocation, and the injuries sustained by the police. But the incident has done much harm to Anglo-Italian relations at a critical time. The Mediterranean front is split in several directions, and only Russia has been the gainer.

There appears little likelihood that the withdrawal can be carried out under these conditions. A solution to the problem of Trieste is further off than ever.

No Room for the Hungry?

THE ASSISTANT REGISTRAR of the Association of Professional Engineers of British Columbia, Mr. Hugh M. McManus, has recently discussed immigration as it affects members of his profession.

In his words:

"It would appear from this state of affairs (a reported low point in employment opportunities) that possibly immigration of engineers should be limited for a time, at least to B.C., until opportunities do exist for them."

So speaks a member of a profession vitally concerned with the physical development of British Columbia at a time widely publicized as a peak era in the province's growth.

A parallel is drawn between his attitude and that of the provincial Trades Union Congress meeting in Vancouver in the middle of October. At that meeting the Congress adopted a resolution urging the Federal Government to revise—that is curtail—the present immigration policy until the Canadian economy is developed by expansion of "our own resources and restoration of former markets . . ." Simultaneously, the Congress attacked as a "short-sighted" policy the export to for-ign countries of Canada's natural resources and the repurchase by Canadians of finished products made from them.

In other words Canada, which enjoys one of the highest living standards in the world, is asked to close the door to immigrants and to curtail trade with foreign countries.

Here is economic isolationism of a kind fully recognized by such men as Wajer Reuther, C.I.O. president who was speaking at another labor convention in Vancouver at the very time the Congress passed its resolutions.

In a magnificent address, Mr. Reuther told his listeners: "We need to learn quickly, if we are to avert World War Three, that social justice is indivisible. We can't have half the world fed and the other half starving and expect the world to live in peace."

The words from this labor leader are impressive. But how do they match the actions of an important labor force which not only would close the doors to foreigners seeking work in a land where they needn't starve, but would deny the peoples of alien lands the trading life blood by which alone they can expect to survive?

The Poets and the Cheese

IRONY—as many statesmen and writers have found to their sorrow, is not a safe commodity in Canada. This literal-minded nation wants its facts plain, without trimmings.

I am reminded of this profound Canadian truth by the unhappy experience of Mr. William Arthur Deacon, our leading literary critic, who recently republished his excellent book of unique Canadian poetry under the title "The 4 Jameses." The 4 Jameses Hutchison wrote what Mr. Deacon evidently considers the worst poetry in the English language, though he was wrong in that judgment; as I shall prove. He printed these poems with his tongue in his cheek and lavished upon them an ironical praise which I consider some of the most humorous stuff ever contrived in Canada.

But look what has happened. Some other critics, lacking Mr. Deacon's sense of fun, have taken the whole thing seriously, have solemnly condemned the work of the Jameses, have profoundly dismissed it as bad poetry and wondered what Mr. Deacon was about.

His superb irony has thus exploded in his face, as he might have expected. However, Canada is not quite as stupid as some of its critics. Most Canadians will understand the glory of such famous and immortal lines as these from Mr. James McIntyre, one of the 4 Jameses, writing on his favorite theme of inspiration, the Canadian cheese:

We have seen thee, queen of cheese.
Lying quietly at your ease
Gently fanned by evening breeze,
Thy fair form no flies dare seize.
This is but the first quatrain of Mr. McIntyre's masterpiece. Some critics prefer the fourth:

May you not receive a scar as
We have heard that Mr. Harris

Intends to send you off as far as

The great world's show at Paris.

AS I SAY, Mr. Deacon, whose knowledge of Canadian literature is unequalled, somehow missed a still richer vein of poetry written by an obscure genius, the late W. T. Pye of Victoria. With a book of his poems before me, I am ready to back him against the worst cheese that Mr. Deacon has ever found in Ontario.

Mr. Pye, like all poets, was obsessed with life and death and I submit that the following lines, an ode to the Jubilee Hospital at the Willows, represents the ultimate high-water mark of Canadian mysticism:

Of all the Institutions in this City
There is one that claims out utmost pity:

For in that place down by the Willows,

We see sad faces on the pillows.
The nurses, ever on the alert,
Often have to change a shirt.
The doctor she calls to their side,
And he mostly turns the tide.
By giving directions to the Nurse,
Which makes their pains easier and not worse.

MATCH THAT. Mr. Deacon. Or consider these stanzas, the very image of dusty death:

An Undertaker is a man who proves his worth at times,

And is mostly there when wanted in all sorts of climes.

He is civil in his manner and sympathetic as he goes.

And makes his work respected by gently easing people's woes.

Of course we know his work is dull and at times is very sad

But they are mostly in good humor and very seldom mad;

They are at the call of everyone and do not often fall

IF SPACE permitted I could out-Pye Mr. Deacon with a hundred of such gems of purest ray serene, but that would miss the whole point, as I fear. Mr. Deacon has missed it. For the truth, I am convinced, is that Mr. Deacon has been caught in his own trap of irony. I mean that he has taken the poetry of the 4 Jameses seriously, as if they

That is too simple an explanation, especially in the case of Mr. Pye.

These men, I am satisfied, were playing their own joke on posterity, they could have written good poetry but wrote bad in a riotous feast of irony to deceive even the best critics.

THROUGH MR. DEACON the 4 Jameses, though quite misunderstood, have achieved immortality. It is tragic, though, that the ablest of the whole school, the very Shakespeare of bad verse, the genius of Victoria, smirking to himself in the dark courthouse, has been forgotten. I trust Mr. Deacon will add him to his next published collection.

Digging Potatoes and Memories

Ottawa Journal

THERE are frequent occasions when the countryman realizes some of his pet ideas and those of his peers: do not jibe. A few farmers still appreciate that for best flavor, potatoes should be left to "ripen" a bit in the soil after the tops of the vines are brown and shrivelled.

There is still life in the roots and it is nature's particular method of maturing a product so that it will keep. Furthermore, if the potatoes are left a spell, they acquire a flavor that you won't find in spuds dug before the vines are barely browned. That flavor is important when a man has fried potatoes for supper at least five nights a week.

Potato digging on modern commercial farms is a highly mechanized process. But time was, 40 years ago, when a lad went out after breakfast on a Saturday morning to dig the Green Mountains, Rural New Yorkers and Irish Cobblers with a potato hook. Some of the old varieties had interesting names.

The Poets and the Cheese

To get a body from the house, the hospital or the jail.

AGAIN, OBSERVE this sentiment, which goes to the final root of things:

Life in this world is very short,
though to some it may seem long.
So it's just as well to do things right as to do things wrong.

Shakespeare could never have written that. It outranks the dying words of Macbeth. But Mr. Pye respected his colleague from Stratford. Listen:

Shakespeare in his wanderings noted different kinds of men.

He has given us wonderful pictures

written by his pen;

The Hamlet was a masterpiece and showed his genius.

Another character called Iago, who proved a regular cuss.

He proved himself two-faced on the stage of life.

And swore to things that were untrue of Othello's wife.

We have men just as two-faced right

in this, our city,

Who'd swear away lives of fellow-men without remorse or pity.

MR. PYE found his inspiration in the night-time gloom of the Victoria courthouse, where he was for many years the watchman.

Reams of poetry written there while the city slept were printed in a Victoria newspaper some 30 years ago, among them these lines of autobiographical agony:

The night was dark and silence

reigned all round

And the Watchman at his post was there to be found.

His mighty vigil which his contract called for him to do

Inspired him with feeling which make a man prove true.

A storm arose, the thunder crashed and lightning lit the skies.

But this was just an incident and caused him no surprise.

These things occurred while most people were sleeping.

Which shows the Watchman his duty was vigilantly keeping.

OR PONDER deeply this generous praise of a well-known Victoria doctor:

A simple mortal on this plane

Had become obsessed with pain;

Franco's Folk Still Have Opinions

Mr. Wade, a young English journalist, is now visiting in Canada.

POLITICS—I was told before I went to Spain—were a subject to be avoided in that country. My friends, who seemed to know all about such matters, said one had only to open one's mouth, in criticism, or even comment, about the political situation and bingo—jail doors opened wide.

To this talk I listened with interest, for I have no great desire to see the inside of any jail, let alone a Spanish one.

In Spain last August, however, I learned otherwise. It was not my fault. I tried hard to keep quiet. I hushed and I shushed them, but people just shrugged and went on talking politics.

Nobody seemed to be concerned in the slightest degree about the possibility of arrest for entering a political discussion which might be taken to be adverse to the Franco dictatorship. I, personally, found as much freedom of speech in Spain, as is claimed in some great western democracies—at least, within a circle of friends or even chance acquaintances.

So it was then, that I met and eventually talked with confidence to a great many of the ordinary people of Spain. I was only there about two months, I admit, but if you have nothing else to do you can meet a whole lot of people in two months. And if you have some interest in world affairs, and they happen to delight in political discussions, then you can hear much of interest.

In Madrid, which has been described as a sugar-coating, covering the poverty of the rest of Spain, I found much cynicism about the deal for American bases. This s—le—as he called it—of Spanish soil to America, was regarded by one English-speaking Spaniard as not important. If Spain sold out completely to the States, then the people could rely on the moral conscience of the Americans to look after their new colony. The Spanish might be better off that way; they could not be worse off he said.

Down in Andalusia, in the ancient Seville, fabled city of gaiety, there was a different spirit. The proposed air-base outside the city would be good for trade, admittedly, but the Spaniards were losing their birthright in the main thing.

Said one old patriot sadly: "We know full well that the money received for this land will soon go, but the Americans will not."

"What will we have to show for it? A better equipped army perhaps, but what else except the soldiers of a foreign power on our soil?" he asked.

In Cadiz, another town where a base is to be built, the people don't seem to have any opinion on the matter at all.

I found more intelligent opinion in Granada, where I had the good fortune to meet a young Spaniard who spoke several languages fluently, including English.

Incidentally, Tony, as I called him, earned $6 a week, in a department store where he was the man behind the sign: "English spoken here." He also spoke French and German, was a student of Russian and of law, and had passed a bookkeeping course. A useful employee for $6 a week, I considered.

Many of his friends were also young. Summary of their opinions ran this way: "If there is a war we will now certainly be in it, because the other side will say we have lost our neutrality by allowing the bases to be built. The money will be useful in rebuilding our army, but even so, we would be helpless in a really big war."

But on the Sacro Monte, where the gypsies dance, they say, more for the love of it than for the money they receive from the tourists, the opinion that trade will improve as a result of the agreement reigns supreme. Said one raven-haired gypsy: "The American soldiers will want to see us dance." Which is a fair assumption.

As I left Spain a week later, I thought that in that country where tomorrow is a better day to do anything than today, the infusion of a little American hustle might not be such a bad thing.

The old Spain of Andalusian legend would pass more rapidly. But perhaps progress could only come from the people at some sacrifice of their national identity. The Flamenco might give way to the jitterbug and the juke box might take over from the castanet and guitar. But the peasants would know a better way of life than they know now. And that, it seemed to me, was the main thing.

DUNCAN—A plan to build a new city hall here for $65,000, turned down by ratepayers in August by a margin of three votes, will come before the public again in the December civic election.

JUNIOR CHAMBER OF COMMERCE here has promised to support the project with a "get out the vote" campaign.

ARMY OFFICER ACCUSED

BRANDON, Man. (CP)—Capt. Martin Franklin Smith, 34-year-old army officer of Ottawa, was acquitted Tuesday in assize court here of a charge of stealing about $30,000 worth of brass shell casings from nearby Shilo military camp. The brass, weighing more than 150,000 pounds, was alleged to have been sold as scrap.

The agreement covered boundaries, assets, debenture indebtedness and schools. Division would give Chemainus 5,000 acres and $1,000, and North Cowichan 43,000 acres and $151,000.

CCF Claims Gunderson Usurps Cabinet Post

Assailing the right of the Bennett government to retain Finance Minister Einar Gunderson as a cabinet minister while he is not an elected member, Alfred Matthews made his first campaign speech Wednesday.

The CCF choice for the seat to be filled in Victoria, in a November 24 by-election, was supported by two of the party's ablest speakers, Arthur Turner, Vancouver East, and Robert Strachan, Cowichan-Newcastle.

Mr. Matthews told an enthusiastic crowd at the Retail Clerks' Hall that the Soored theory, "the government needs Gunderson," is untrue. He maintained that there are several members ready to accept the cabinet post of finance minister.

He left the job of criticizing the recent legislation to the two MLAs on the platform.

Both Mr. Turner and Mr. Strachan repeated recent

Dairymen Cool To Tisdalle Quota Scheme

The Vancouver Island Dairymen's Association does not support Saanich MLA John Tisdalle's compromise solution on the milk quota issue.

Henry G. Robinson, the association's secretary-manager, said his group can see no justification in giving one area any share of another's market, regardless of the percentage.

Mr. Tisdalle had suggested that only 75 per cent of the mainland's quota be allotted to that area, the remainder to fluctuate with the ability of Island producers to fill the quota.

The association wants abolition of the permanent quota allotted to mainland producers. The association is awaiting answers on the subject from the B.C. Milk Board.

The issue will be discussed at the association's annual meeting Friday at Duncan. Agriculture Minister Ken Kiernan will address the meeting.

Hospitals Deny Private Room Levy When Ward Treatment Impossible

Victoria's two major hospitals have refused claims that they levy extra charges for semi-private and private rooms when public wards are filled.

The Victoria and District Trades and Labor Council recently said patients who want the cheaper ward accommodation are being placed in semi-private and private rooms and forced to pay the additional charge.

Sister Mary Angelus, Sister Superior at St. Joseph's Hospital, said:

"From Jan. 1 to Oct. 31 we have written off as bad debts a total of $10,070 for patients who have asked for wards and had to be given semi-private or private rooms and were not charged for them."

She said the hospital's policy

A Royal Jubilee Hospital official said in cases of emergency it doesn't generally charge higher rates for semi-private

He said in non-emergency cases patients are expected to pay extra for the semi-private and private accommodation if beds in public wards aren't available, and patients won't agree to postpone admission until a public ward bed is open.

Poet Pokes Finger of Fun At Arch-Snobs of Nairobi

Approximately 200 persons Tuesday night at Victoria College heard Roy Campbell, internationally known South African poet, weave poetry and humor into an informal lecture.

The audience chuckled with his reading of "Snapshot of Nairobi" "a place so snobbish that unless you've been picked out of Eton or Cambridge nobody will speak to you at all."

Born in Durban in 1901, Campbell helped publish a magazine in South Africa, but made the mistake of criticizing the color ban, he told his audience. He lived the 15 years following in Spain.

After service during the war as a sergeant-major with the King's African Rifles, he was with the BBC for five years, until he saved enough money to buy a farm in Portugal.

Carter KO's Savoie

Retains World's Lightweight Title

MONTREAL (CP)—One short, devastating right that traveled less than a foot was all champion Jimmy Carter needed Wednesday night to flatten Armand Savoie and explode the Montreal boy's dream of the world lightweight championship.

The little pile of points Savoie had courageously put together for a lead disappeared with the knockout blow at 50 seconds of the fifth round.

NO DISTRESS

The champion began opening up in the fourth with solid belts that won him the round. Both fighters came out of it with cuts over the eye but neither showed the slightest sign of distress.

Savoie came bouncing off his corner for the fifth. There were light exchanges and Savoie moved in as he flicked a left. The little Negro champion saw an opening. His right fist snapped out and Savoie went down on his back.

As referee Tommy Sullivan took up the count, Savoie suddenly raised his head, shook it and appeared to realize he had to move fast if he were to beat the fatal 10. But he was still scrambling on hands and knees when Sullivan tolled it off.

The fight drew a crowd of 9,136 to the Montreal Forum. The gross gate was $53,710 and the net gate $45,855.

Carter received $25,000; Savoie's share was 12½ per cent of the gate.

The same judges who scored a decision for Savoie over Carter in a non-title fight here last February were assigned again to Wednesday night's fight. Judge Leon Germaine gave the first three rounds to Savoie, the fourth to Carter. Judge Rene Ouimet scored the first even, the next two for Savoie and the fourth for Carter. Judge Johnny Gow gave Carter the first and fourth, Savoie the second and third. The Canadian Press and Associated Press cards coincided with Germaine's scoring.

TERIFFIC PUNCH

"He was coming in and seemed to drop his hands," said Carter. "I had been looking for an opening and I let go. I wasn't surprised when he didn't get up. I knew I had caught him with a really terrific punch."

Savoie said "I saw the right coming but couldn't get out of the way. I heard the count but couldn't do nothing. Champion, my eye. I can beat him, I know."

Savoie and his manager, Cliff Sowery, said they will campaign among the 10 ranking lightweights and try to get a return shot at the title.

Spilled for a Loss

Action was at a fast pace in the final game of the Victoria Junior Canadian Football Association schedule between Vampires and Royal Roads at Heywood Avenue Park Wednesday. Vampires won contest, 1-0, on a single by Art Dawe to take runner-up honors, finishing behind league champion Navy. Here Paul Manson (6), Royal Roads quarterback, is being brought down for a loss on 50-yard line by unidentified Vampire player. Teammate Paul Moody and Vamps' Larry Lewis move up in background. Vamps Edge Cadets, Semis Open Saturday

Vampires 1, Royal Roads 0

Vampires closed out the Victoria Junior Canadian Football Association league schedule on a victorious note at Heywood Avenue Park Wednesday, edging Royal Roads, 1-0, in one of the better games of the season.

Matched evenly with cadets throughout the contest, Vampires gained their margin of victory when Art Dawe attempted a field goal from Royal Roads 45-yard line, the ball missing the uprights but falling in for a 30-yard gain.

PLAYOFFS

With the league schedule now completed the four teams in the circuit face the playoffs. League champion Navy is scheduled to meet Oak Bay Whitney's in the first sudden-death semifinal at Heywood Park Saturday afternoon at 2.

It will possibly be the last appearance of Navy's Cam McIntyre in action as he has been transferred. A Navy band will be in attendance.

The following week Vampires and Royal Roads tangle in the second semifinal series, the two winners meeting for the play-off title.

Rule Change Hinted

OTTAWA (CP)—Jim McCaffrey, president of Ottawa Rough Riders, said Tuesday night that Canadian Rugby Union officials have "definitely decided" to change the present rule on safety touches.

"We have definitely decided to do something about it, and all coaches will be consulted on this end," he told a meeting of football fans.

It is quite possible that instead of bringing the ball out to the 25-yard line following the scoring play, it will be brought out to the 15-yard line."

A safety touch counts two points to the defending team when a ball-carrying member of the offensive team is tackled behind his own goal line, or concedes the two points by running into touch. The offensive team retains possession of the ball, scrimmaging from its 25-yard line.

The safety-touch rule has been frequently used this season by teams wishing to keep possession of the ball to forestall a touchdown threat.

Stamps Drop Snyder, Seek New Grid Coach

CALGARY (CP)—Calgary Stampeders of the Western Interprovincial Football Union announced Tuesday night that Bob Snyder will not be retained to coach the team again in 1954.

The 40-year-old Snyder, former head coach of the University of Toledo, and of Los Angeles Rams, guided Stamps this season when they finished in last place in the four-team loop with three wins, one tie and 12 defeats.

Stampeders, who won the Grey Cup in 1948 under Les Lear, said the directors feel the team's failures were not "due primarily to a lack of material" and Snyder had not fulfilled his pre-season promise to open up the game and make it more interesting from a spectator's point of view.

'Names' Named In Cougar Loss

Vancouver 4, Victoria 3

By BILL WALKER

VANCOUVER.—It wasn't so much the fact that it was two years, one month and five days ago that Victoria Cougars last won a Western Hockey League game on Vancouver Forum ice that bothered coach Billy Reay.

It was the manner in which the Cougars lost the latest one—a 4-3 decision—that put Reay in bitter mood, bitter enough to name names following the loss Tuesday.

"No line should ever have four goals scored on it," he said of the irrefutable evidence that the unit of Colin Kilburn, Andy Hebenton, Doug Anderson, and for the last goal and winning one, Reay himself at centre was on the ice for those four Vancouver goals.

That remark alone, which by now probably has been carried into the Cougar camp (the club practiced Wednesday on its return), took any onus off goalkeeper Ralph Almas—that may have existed.

Almas could hardly be blamed for the defeat as it was an overall laxity which enabled the Canucks to come from behind in a 3-2 second-period deficit and win their ninth straight at home this season.

October 5, 1951 was the last time a Cougar team ever emerged victorious here.

The first horrid five minutes of the game, a period which is becoming a bugbear to the Cougars this year, produced the first Vancouver goal, Les Hickey banging in a pass out from Wiggy Wylie into the net at 1:47. It was fortunate the Canucks didn't add another or two during that time.

Then the Cougars came to life and outplayed the Canucks from there until Andy Bathgate fired the No. 2 marker for the Canucks at 2:11 of the third period.

Third period—2, Vancouver, 3, Victoria. Kilburn 13:18; Hickey 14:33. Penalty shot: Brennan 10: 8, Peletier 15: 40; Peletier 8: 23.

EDMONTON 8, CALGARY 5

First period—No scoring. No penalties.

Second period—1, Edmonton, Fielder (Wall, Adam) 1:33; 2, Edmonton, Scisilizzi (Bud Poile) 15:27. Penalties: Davis (Edmonton) 11:47; Poile 12:10; Kilburn 12:23; Scisilizzi 13:47; Poile 14:47; Reay 16:48.

Third period—1, Victoria, Anderson (Conn, Dobroho, Bettie) 1:46; 2, Edmonton, Doug Anderson, for the last goal and winning one, Reay himself at centre was on the ice for those four Vancouver goals.

KINS TO MEET MODERNS IN SECOND HOOP TEST

Victoria Kins will play the second game of their 1953-54 Senior A basketball season Saturday night when they open their doors to New Westminster Moderns at Oak Bay Junior High School.

Kins started their season two Saturdays ago by dropping a tight 51-50 decision to Alberni Athletics in a thriller. In spite of the loss, fans who saw the game were highly impressed with the showing of the young Kins.

Moderns, a member of the Vancouver Senior A League, also have a young club and will provide a strong test for Busher Jackson's speedy Kins.

Ten Canadians Named To AAU 'Hall of Fame'

MONTREAL (CP) — Ten athletes were named to the Canadian Amateur Hall of Fame at a committee meeting early this week in conjunction with the annual convention of the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada.

Those honored in the announcement made by Col. George MacLennan, president of the Hall of Fame, are:

Joe Wright, St. of Toronto, from 1889 to 1930 one of Canada's greatest oarsmen and winner of 130 rowing championships.

Eugene Brosseau of Montreal, winner of the Canadian welter-weight boxing championship in 1915, United States welter-weight championship in 1916 and the U.S. middleweight championship in 1917.

The Wurtele twins—Rhonda and Rhoda, both now married—two of Canada's most famous skiers, and winners of several Canadian titles between 1947 and 1952. Rhoda also won the 1952 Norwegian combined downhill-slalom championship, while Rhonda twice held U.S. national titles.

Tom Osborne, Canadian heavyweight boxing champion, 1932-38. Don Stockton, Canadian wrestling champion 1925, 1928 and 1932, and member of the 1924, 1928 and 1932 Canadian Olympic teams.

Jim Trifunov of Winnipeg, British champion, 1923-29, and again in 1932, Canadian feather-weight champion in 1925.

Aubrey Ireland Jr., holder of the Canadian senior paddling title for three years and winner of a senior singles U.S. title during the period 1936-41. He was the youngest paddler ever to win a Canadian singles championship.

AUTOMOTIVE NEWS

Victoria Daily Times THURSDAY, NOV. 12, 1953 13

Modern Chrome Needs Care

A common ailment of automobiles built since 1950 is "chrome pox"—the unsightly rusting and blistering of the bright chrome finish after the surface has been scarred.

Worse still is the chrome finish on American cars built after March 1, 1953, the date on which the amount of nickel used in chrome was drastically reduced. What bright finish is permitted is much lighter than in previous years, and much more vulnerable.

Most Canadian manufacturers have solved the problem by using hard, durable stainless steel for most of their bright work, and heavy chrome on door handles.

Victoria dealers approached said they would be pleased to offer all advice possible. It is a problem that was forced on manufacturers and is well beyond dealers' control, and they are anxious to see owners satisfied.

Owner's Needs Decide Proper Car to Buy

INSTALLMENT 10

These are only suggestions as food for thought when you set out to buy that new car.

First, make up your mind whether you are going to buy a new car or sell your old one. There is the possibility that the more expensive, more difficult to sell new car, will call for greater allowance on a trade-in.

What do you use your car for 90 per cent of the time?

It trips to Florida with your friends, 17 suitcases, and a tent? Do you live in the Dominion Hotel and motor to work in the city library? Do you live in Oak Bay and work at Yarrows or Bamberton?

In this type of car, everything has been done to make driving easier. Mechanical aids assist gear changing, steering, braking, cigarette lighting, door opening, and car top and window operation. This car is not meant to be either a sports model or an economy car, and will be a disappointment if forced into these roles.

If motoring is your favorite sport, then you want a high-performance car. It is a type that is not popular, and there are few examples to look over in Victoria.

Let us understand first, however, that a sports car is a car especially designed for safe driving, and is not to be confused with softly sprung, overstuffed sedans animated by several hundred cubic inches of motor.

Have the salesman put the car on a hoist for your examination underneath. Look for big brake drums, big shock absorbers, strong steering linkage, and a well-braced frame. See that air can get to the brake drums.

The motor should be built for the job.

Try Rough Roads

Get a demonstration, not at 100 miles per hour on a straight concrete highway, but around sharp corners on a rough gravel road. Even a bus will handle well at high speed on a straight road.

Check the brakes by decelerating hard several times in quick succession. Make sure there is absolutely no backlash in the steering gear and, on a hoist, check that from full lock to full lock takes no more than three turns of the steering wheel. Take it on a fast run over a rough, herringbone road.

Next, the luxury car.

Now is the time to look for solid comfort, since the motor will be more than adequate in any car in this classification for comfortable travel within legal limits.

Test on Hill

If buying a small car, I would suggest giving it a real rough time over a real rough road. Don't just try one car, but several, since all have their pet features.

Test the brakes by giving them several applications down a long, steep hill, and note whether the body stays level or rolls on a sharp corner. Check the solidity of the body by opening and closing the doors, and rapping it with your knuckles. Finally, sit in the driver's seat and make sure you are comfortable and can see well.

BCE Proves Value of Maintenance Program

The B.C. Electric, Vancouver Island's largest operator of highway equipment, has found that preventive maintenance, such as constant lubrication and checking of mechanical parts, pays off over a period of years.

The company places prime importance on making its vehicles safe for the road, and makes every effort to assure that every vehicle is right before it goes on service.

"Any bus leaving our Garibaldi Road shop is 100 percent fit for the road," said Bernie Clarke, garage supervisor, in an interview this week. "No matter how short a trip it makes, even to carry the afternoon overload only it is given a thorough examination immediately upon its return to the shop."

DAILY SERVICING

Inspections of all major parts are made with a frequency that would awe the average motorist. Every bus is serviced every night, and each man in the shop who drives buses around the yard is trained to watch for mechanical defects.

Prime object of the company's vigilance is safety, but Mr. Clarke has found that economy of operation is an interesting and welcome by-product of his never-ending checks on vehicles, and rigid adherence to strict lubrication schedules. "The buses get a full lubrication job on the grease rack every 1,000 miles," he said. "Complete records of every job are kept, and we know exactly what service has been given by every major component, such as engine, transmission, rear axle, or steering gear."

completely—by the end of the day side has its regular repairs and component changes—parts are removed long before they break down—and the night crews perform the maintenance.

Work in the shop is not competitive, and men are encouraged to do a job that is finished and safe, not rushed to meet a price. Mechanics grow up in the business, since all are started in the company way as apprentices.

Western Front Folds But Trouble in East

Churchill Watches Final Battle On Rhine; Polish Issue Boils Up

(This is another installment of Volume VI of the war memoirs of Winston Churchill, Britain's Prime Minister. Other installments will be carried daily.)

By WINSTON S. CHURCHILL

While the Americans to the south were closing on the Rhine, Montgomery had made ready to cross it.

Montgomery pressed forward his preparations and the Allied Air Forces brought all their power to bear. In the last week of February they began a bombardment from Bremen to Koblenz to deny to the enemy the arsenals of the Ruhr and isolate the battle area.

Under Montgomery were the First Canadian, the Second British and the Ninth U.S. Armies. The two latter would seize bridgeheads north and south of Wesel, while the 1st British Commando Brigade, in the centre, captured Wesel itself. We would cross by night after an hour's bombardment by 2,000 guns, while the Canadians protected the left flank and themselves crossed later to drive northwards. Next morning two airborne divisions, the 6th British and 17th American, would drop behind the enemy's lines north of the town to disrupt his defences from the rear. This arrangement promoted their early junction with the other troops, which had played us false at Arnhem. In support were our heavy bombers and no fewer than 3,000 fighters under Air Marshal Coningham.

I desired to be with our armies at the crossing, and Montgomery made me welcome. Taking only my secretary, Jock Colville, and Tommy (Thompson) with me I flew in the afternoon of March 23 by Dakota from Northolt to the British headquarters near Venlo. The Commander-in-Chief conducted me to the caravan in which he lived and moved. I found myself in the comfortable wagon I had used before. We dined at seven o'clock, and an hour later we repaired with strict punctuality to Montgomery's map wagon. Here were displayed all the maps kept from hour to hour by select group of officers. The whole plan of our deployment and attack was easily comprehended. We were to force a passage over the river at ten points on a 20-mile front from Rhenenberg to Rees.

Huge Armies Massed On Opposite Banks

All our resources were to be used. 80,000 men, the advance-guard of armies a million strong, were to be hurled forward. Masses of boats and pontoons lay ready. On the far side stood the Germans, entrenched and organised in all the strength of modern firepower.

Everything I had ever seen or studied in war, or read, made me doubt that a river could be a good barrier of defence against superior force. In Hanley's Operations of War, which I had pondered over since Sandhurst days, he argues the truth that a river running parallel to the line of advance is a much more dangerous feature than one which lies squarely athwart it; and he illustrates this theory by Napoleon's marvellous campaign of 1814. I was therefore in good hopes of the battle even before the Field-Marshal explained his plans to me. Moreover, we had now the advantage of mastery in the air. The episode which the Commander-in-Chief particularly wished me to see was the drop next morning of the two airborne divisions, comprising 14,000 men, with artillery and much other offensive equipment, behind the enemy lines. Accordingly we all went to bed before ten o'clock.

Throughout the night the attacking divisions passed across, meeting little resistance at first, as the bank itself was lightly defended. At dawn bridgeheads, shallow as yet, were firmly held, and the Commandos were already at grips in Wesel.

In the morning Montgomery had arranged for me to witness from a hill-top amid rolling downland the great fly-in. It was full daylight before the subdued but intense roar and rumbling of swarms of aircraft stole upon us. After that in the course of half an hour over 2,000 aircraft swooped overhead in their formations. My view-point had been well chosen. The light was clear enough to enable one to see where the descent on the enemy took place. The aircraft faded from sight, and then almost immediately afterwards returned towards us at a different level. The parachutists were invisible even to the best field-glasses. But now there was a double murmur and roar of reinforcements arriving and of those who had delivered their attacks returning. Soon one saw with a sense of tragedy aircraft in twos and threes coming back askew, as smoke, or

The next day, March 25, we went to meet Eisenhower. On our way I told Montgomery how his system resembled that of Marlborough and the conduct of battles in the 18th century, where the Commander-in-Chief acted through his lieutenant-generals. Then the Commander-in-Chief sat on his horse and directed by word of mouth a battle on a five or six mile front, which ended in a day and settled the fortunes of great nations, sometimes for years or generations to come. In order to make his will effective he had four or five lieutenant-generals posted at different points on the front, who knew his whole mind and were concerned with the execution of his plan. These officers commanded no troops and were intended to be off-shoots and expressions of the Supreme Commander. In modern times the general must sit in his office conducting a battle ranging over ten times the front and lasting often for a week or ten days. In these changed conditions Montgomery's method of personal eye-witnesses, who were naturally treated with the utmost consideration by the front-line commanders of every grade, was an interesting though partial revival of old days.

Blood-Soaked Jock In Bad Books Again

The assault was now in progress along the whole front, and I was conducted by motor on a long tour from one point to another, and to the various corps headquarters. It was late in the evening when I returned. My private secretary, Jock Colville, had work to do for me, and could not come with me in the car. He had however made a plan of his own, and actually crossed the Rhine in one of the boats during the morning. There was no opposition to the passage, but the lodgements on the other side were under artillery fire. A shell burst near him and an officer with whom he was talking. A soldier of our airborne division standing beside him was severely wounded, and Jock was drenched in his blood. He naturally would have said nothing about this incident but for the fact that he arrived back at headquarters at precisely the same time as Montgomery and I. His blood-stained tunic caught the Field-Marshal's eye, and he asked what happened. He then complained that a civil servant should have crossed the river without his personal permission having been obtained. I protected Jock from his wrath, and promised to rebuke him myself, which I did in suitable terms after learning what had passed, and pointing out how much inconvenience he would have caused to the work of my Private Office if he had been killed. Who would have decoded and presented to me the secret telegrams that came in every few hours? He expressed his contrition, and I advised him to keep as far away from the Field-Marshal as possible during mess. This he did by dining elsewhere, and all passed off quietly.

Four Divisions Over In Safe Bridgeheads

Things went well all that day. The four assaulting divisions were safely across and established in bridgeheads 5,000 yards deep.

At 8 p.m. we repaired to the map wagon, and now I had an excellent opportunity of seeing Montgomery's methods of conducting a battle on this gigantic scale. For nearly two hours a succession of young officers, of about the rank of major, presented themselves. Each had come back from a different sector of the front. They were the direct personal representatives of the Commander-in-Chief, and could go anywhere and see anything and ask any questions of any commander, whether at the divisional headquarters or with the forward troops. As in turn they made their reports and were searchingingly questioned by their chief the whole story of the day's battle was unfolded. This gave Monty a complete account of what had happened by highly competent men whom he knew well and whose eyes he trusted. It afforded an invaluable cross-check to the reports from all the various headquarters and from the commanders, all of which had already been sifted and weighed by General de Guingand, his Chief of Staff, and were known to Montgomery. By this process he was able to form a more vivid, direct and sometimes more accurate picture. The officers ran great risks, and of the seven or eight to whom I listened on this and succeeding nights two were killed in the next few weeks. I thought the system admirable, and indeed the only way in which a modern Commander-in-Chief could see as well as read what was going on in every part of the front. This process having finished, Montgomery gave a series of directions to de Guingand, which were turned into immediate action by the staff machine. And so to bed.

The next day, March 25, we Jock Colville and another for himself.

During the next few days we continued to gain ground east of the Rhine, and by March 28 the Ninth U.S. Army was approaching Duisburg and had entered Gladbeck. The airborne divisions, with the aid of a British armored brigade, penetrated deep towards Haltern, whence the line was carried to Borken and Bocholt. The fighting on the left flank had been severe, but the 3rd Canadian Division, working down the course of the Rhine, was closing on Emmerich to join the rest of the Canadian Army on the near bank. Thus by the end of the month we possessed a springboard east of the Rhine from which to launch major operations deep into Northern Germany. Of the engineering feats that were an essential part of this historic battle I need mention but one as an example of many. By the evening of the 26th no fewer than a dozen bridges had been thrown across the great river.

Less Opposition For American Armies

All this time the American armies in the south, though not opposed so strongly, had made astonishing progress. The two bridgeheads which were the reward of their boldness were being daily reinforced and enlarged, and more crossings were made south of Koblenz and at Worms. On March 25 the American Third Army was in Darmstadt, and on the 29th in Frankfurt. On the same day the Seventh U.S. Army occupied Mannheim, and the First U.S. Army, breaking out from Remagen, was already in Glessen and heading north. On April 2 the French were across the Rhine on the right of the Seventh U.S. Army, which was driving east beyond Heidelberg. Kassel fell. The left of the First U.S. Army gained touch with the Ninth U.S. Army east of Hamm. The Ruhr and its 325,000 defenders were encircled. Germany's Western Front had collapsed.

Soviets Obviously Break Polish Pact

As the weeks passed after Yalta it became clear that the Soviet Government was doing nothing to carry out our agreements about broadening the Polish Government to include all Polish parties and both sides. Molotov steadily refused to give an opinion about the Poles we mentioned, and not one of them was allowed to come even to a preliminary round-table discussion. He had offered to allow us to send observers to Poland, and had been disconcerted by the readiness and speed with which we had accepted. When our Ambassador raised the point he made difficulties, arguing, among other things, that it might affect the prestige of the Lublin Provisional Government. No progress of any kind was made in the talks at Moscow. Time was on the side of the Russians and their Polish adherents, who were fastening their grip upon the country by all kinds of severe measures, which they did not wish outside observers to see. Every day's delay was a gain to these hard forces.

I therefore appealed to the President in the hope that we could address Stalin jointly on the highest level. At this critical time Roosevelt's health and strength had failed. In my telegram I thought I was talking to my trusted friend and colleague as I had done all these years. I was no longer being fully heard by him. I did not know how ill he was, or I might have felt it cruel to press him. The President's devoted aides were anxious to keep their knowledge of his condition within the narrowest circle, and various hands drafted in combination the answers which were sent in his name. To these, as his life ebbed, Roosevelt could only give general guidance and approval. This was an heroic effort. The tendency of the State Department was naturally to avoid bringing matters to a head while the President dent was physically so frail and to leave the burden on the Ambassador in Moscow. Harry Hopkins, who might have given personal help, was himself seriously ailing, and frequently absent or uninvited. These were costly weeks for all.

First of Violations

Affects Romania

On the very evening when I was speaking in the House of Commons upon the results of our labors at Yalta the first violation by the Russians both of the spirit and letter of our agreements took place in Roumania. We were all committed by the Declaration on Liberated Europe, so recently signed, to see that both free elections and democratic Governments were established in the countries occupied by Allied armies. On February 27 (1945) Vyshinsky, who had appeared in Bucharest without warning on the previous day, demanded an audience of King Michael and insisted that he should dismiss the all-party Government which had been formed after the royal coup d'état of August 1944 and had led to the expulsion of the Germans from Roumania. The young monarch, coolly backed by his Foreign Minister, Visanu, resisted these demands until the following day. Vyshinsky called again, and, brushing aside the King's request at least to be allowed to consult the leaders of the political parties, banged his fist on the table, shouted for immediate acceptance, and walked out of the room, slamming the door. At the same time Soviet tanks and troops deployed in the streets of the capital, and on March 6 a Soviet-nominated Administration took office.

I was deeply disturbed by this news, which was to prove a pattern of things to come. The Russians had established the rule of a Communist minority by force and misrepresentation. We were hampered in our protests because Eden and I during our October visit to Moscow had recognised that Russia should have a largely predominant voice in Roumania and Bulgaria while we took the lead in Greece. Stalin had kept very strictly to this understanding during the six weeks fighting against the Communists and ELAS in the city of Athens, in spite of the fact that all this was most disagreeable to him and those around him. Peace had now been restored, and though many difficulties lay before us, I hoped that in a few months we should be able to hold free, unfettered elections, preferably under British, American, and Russian supervision, and that thereafter a constitution and Government would be erected on the indisputable will of the Greek people.

Stalin was now pursuing the opposite course in the two Black countries, and one which was absolutely contrary to all democratic ideas. He had subscribed on paper to the principles of Yalta, and now they were being trampled down in Roumania. But if I pressed him too much he might say, "I did not interfere with your action in Greece; why do you not give me the same latitude in Roumania?" This would lead to comparisons between his aims and ours. Neither side would convince the other. Having regard to my personal relations with Stalin, I was sure it would be a mistake to embark on such an argument.

Molotov Insisted

On Own Interpretation

Besides this, I was very conscious of the much more important issue of Poland, and I did not want to do anything about Roumania which might harm the prospect of a Polish settlement.

The news from Moscow about Poland was also most disappointing.

After a fairly promising start Molotov was now refusing to accept any interpretation of the Crimea proposals except his own extremely rigid and narrow one. He was attempting to bar practically all our candidates for the consultations, was taking the line that he must base himself on the views of Beiru and his gang, and had withdrawn his offer to let us send observers to Poland. He clearly wanted to make a farce of consulting the "non-Lublin" Poles—which meant that the new Government of Poland would be merely the existing one dressed up to look more respectable to the ignorant—and also wanted to stop us seeing

'TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY'

(Continued from Page 16) in the liquidations and deportations and all the manoeuvres of setting up a totalitarian regime before elections were held and even before a new Government was installed. If we did not get things right the world would soon see that Mr. Roosevelt and I had undertaken a fraudulent prospectus when we put our signatures to the Crimea settlement.

Roosevelt Wanted Different Tactics

The President assured me on March 11 that our objects were identical, namely to stop the Lublin Poles persecuting their political opponents and vice versa. The only difference between us, he claimed, was on tactics. I wanted the demand to be put squarely to the Soviet Government as such, whereas he felt we had a much better chance of success by proposing a general political truce. At Yalta Stalin made quite a point of the terrorist activities of the underground forces of the London Polish Government against the Red Army and the Lublin Poles. Whether this was true was beside the point, it was what the Soviet Government maintained. But if we merely demanded that the Lublin Poles alone be forced to stop persecuting their political opponents, Stalin would be certain to refuse.

Mr. Roosevelt agreed about sending observers; but he preferred to wait until our Ambassadors appealed to Molotov before either of us approached Stalin personally.

Polish Fate Sealed Without Agreement

As I knew there was a deadlock in Moscow it was only with much reluctance that I deferred to the President's wish, but we could make no progress without American aid, and if we got out of step the doom of Poland was sealed.

Although I had no exact information about the President's state of health I had the feeling that, except for the occasional flashes of courage and insight, the telegrams he was sending us were not his own. I therefore sent him a message in a personal vein to ease the uphill march of official business.

18 Mar. 45

I hope that the rather numerous telegrams I have to send you on so many of our difficult and intertwined affairs are not becoming a bore to you. Our friendship is the rock on which I build for the future of the world, so long as I am one of the builders. I always think of those tremendous days when you devised Lend-Lease, when we met at Argentia, when you decided with my heartfelt agreement to launch the invasion of Africa, and when you comforted me for the loss of Tobruk by giving me the 300 Shermans of subsequent Alamein fame. I remember the part our personal relations have played in the advance of the World Cause, now nearing its first military goal.

2. I am sending to Washington and San Francisco most of my Ministerial colleagues on one mission or another, and I shall on this occasion stay at home to mind the shop. All the time I shall be looking forward to your long-promised visit. Clemmie is off to Russia next week for a Red Cross tour as far as the Urals to which she has been invited by Uncle Joe (if we may venture to describe him thus), but she will be back in time to welcome you and Eleanor. My thoughts are always with you all.

3. Peace with Germany and Japan on our terms will not bring much rest to you and me (if I am still responsible). As I observed last time, when the war of the giants is over the war of the pygmies will begin. There will be a torn, ragged and hungry world to help to its feet; and what will Uncle Joe or his successor say to the way we should both like to do it? It was quite a relief (to me) to talk partly politics the other day. It was like working in wood after working in steel. The advantage of this telegram is that it has nothing to do with shop, except that I had a good talk with Rosenman about our daily bread.

All good wishes.

Winston

Judge Samuel Rosenman was one of Mr. Roosevelt's close personal advisers, who had helped to draft the President's report to Congress on the Yalta Conference, and who visited me at this time in London.

San Francisco Talks Appeared in Danger

Anglo-American tactics and procedure were at length agreed. Meanwhile, as we in London had foreseen, the deadlock in Moscow continued. The Soviet policy became daily more plain, as did the use they were making of their unbridled and unobserved control of Poland. They asked that Poland should be represented at San Francisco only by the Lublin Government. When the Western Powers would not agree the Soviets refused to let Molotov attend. This threatened to make all progress at San Francisco, and even the Conference itself, impossible. Molotov in reply to an agreed communication from our Ambassadors on March 19 and in discussion on March 23 returned a series of flat negatives on every point he dealt with and ignored others. It was plain as a pikestaff that his tactics were to drag the business out while the Lublin Committee consolidated their power. On March 27 I felt bound to renew the discussion.

Prime Minister to President Roosevelt

March 27, 1945.

"... As you know, if we fail altogether to get a satisfactory solution on Poland and are in fact defrauded by Russia both Eden and I are pledged to report the fact openly to the House of Commons. There I advised critics of the Yalta settlement to trust Stalin. If I have to make a statement of facts to the House the whole world will draw the deduction that such advice was wrong; all the more so that our failure in Poland will result in a set-up there on the new Romanian model. In other words, eastern Europe will be shown to be excluded from the terms of the Declaration on Liberated Europe, and you and we shall be excluded from any jot of influence in that area.

"Surely we must not be manoeuvred into becoming parties to imposing on Poland—and on how much more of eastern Europe—the Russian version of democracy?... There seems to be only one possible alternative to confessing our total failure. That alternative is to stand by our interpretation of the Yalta declaration. But I am convinced it is no use trying to argue this any further with Molotov. In view of this, it is not the moment now for a message from us both on Poland to Stalin?

"I see nothing else likely to produce good results. If we are rebuffed it will be a very sinister sign, taken with the other Russian actions at variance with the spirit of Yalta—such as Molotov's rude questioning of our word in the case of "Crossword" (see tomorrow's installment), the unsatisfactory proceedings over our liberated German prisoners, the coup d'état in Roumania, the Russian refusal to allow the Declaration on Liberated Europe to operate, and the blocking of all progress in the European Advisory Commission by the Russians.

"What also do you make of Molotov's withdrawal from San Francisco? It leaves a bad impression on me. Does it mean that the Russians are going to run out, or are they trying to blackmail us? As we have both understood them, the Dumbarton Oaks proposals, which will form the basis of discussion at San Francisco, are based on the conception of great power unity. If no such unity exists on Poland, which is after all a major problem of the postwar settlement—to say nothing of the other matters just mentioned—what it will legitimate is entirely.

We certainly thought that a Polish government "new" and "reorganized" would by now have been in existence, recognized by all the United Nations. This would have afforded a proof to the world of our capacity and resolve to work together for its future. It is still not too late to achieve this.

'TRIUMPH AND TRAGEDY'

(Continued from Page 17). Foreign observers were sent into Poland the Poles would regard this as an insult to their national dignity, bearing in mind the fact moreover that the present attitude of the British Government to the Provisional Polish Government is regarded as unfriendly by the latter. So far as the Soviet Government is concerned, it cannot but take account of the negative attitude of the Provisional Government to the question of sending foreign observers into Poland. Further, you are aware that the Provisional Polish Government puts no obstacles in the way of entrance into Poland by representatives of other states which take up a different attitude towards it, and does not in any way obstruct them. This is the case, for instance, in regard to the representatives of the Czechoslovak Government, the Yugoslav Government, and others...

These carefully considered documents at least offered some hope of progress. I began at once my painful discussions with Mikolajczyk and other Polish representatives, with the object of obtaining their unreserved affirmation of agreement with the Yalta decisions.

Northerners Watch, Chill and Thrill, While Hot Blood of Bull Fight Warms Mexican Souls

This is another in a series of editorials on impressions gained and places visited by members of the newspaper and radio party on the inaugural flight of a CPAL nonstop service to Mexico and South America at the beginning of the month.

By LLOYD BAKER

MEXICO CITY — If your stomach begins to turn turtle don't say anything.

Don't even pull a face.

It would be most uncomplimentary to the people of Mexico if you displayed anything but pleasure at an exhibition of their national sport, national art, or whatever you want to call it.

BETWEEN TIMES

By MONTE ROBERTS

Add famous sayings which I doubt will ever get into Bartlett's Familiar Quotations:

"My only regret is, I have but one seat to give for my Gundy."

I do hope all sharp-eyed constituents noticed the following news item:

"Premier W. A. C. Bennett will meet Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent and the federal cabinet Dec. 14 in Ottawa to discuss B.C.'s 'public investment policy' proposal.

"Finance Minister Einar Gunderson and Attorney-General Robert Bonner will accompany the premier."

Apparently the taxpayers are expected to provide Mr. Gunderson with a seat on the plane to Ottawa—whether or not they wish to honor him with a seat in the Legislature.

And now, let us leave the seats to the upholsterers while we go to sea.

A large and beautiful ship was launched in Great Britain this week, and, as she slid down the ways so many thousands of miles from Victoria, I felt a proprietary interest in her.

It's not that I hold any shares in Furness, Withy, her owners; or that I personally drove in a rivet, or even drew a line on the draughting board where she was born.

It's just that I (pause here for modest cough and deprecating shrug) chose her name.

So I can't help boasting to the constituents that I have provided the name for a 10,000-ton passenger freighter which will be employed in the U.K.-B.C. trade.

Loyal and long-remembered readers may remember an item in Between Times several months back, in which it was explained that Furness, Withy was having trouble finding a name for its newest ship.

The problem was, the first part of the name must be "Pacific," and the second half had to begin with "N," as it is Furness policy to have its ships spell out the name of the owners.

Thus the Furness ships are named "Fortune," and "Unity," and "Reliance" and—what starts with "N"?

Between Times obligingly furnished the name—Pacific Northwest—and when this column was called to the attention of Sir Ernest Murrant, the chairman, the new freighter received its name.

"Pacific Northwest" was christened this week.

Mind if I'm a little proud? First ship I ever named, you know.

Man in New York, a fashion designer by trade, has come up with a new idea in men's ties.

He says the ties of today should be made of fur, such as mink or muskrat.

I would suggest to all men in danger of being forced to wear such ties: please grow a beard.

This is a much more economical way of having fun on your chest.

Also, very appropriate for this naval garrison.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. HUNTER

"What happened dear?" asked Mr. Smith, as his wife came into the living room, laden with parcels and evidently rather upset. "The store was so crowded, John," she replied, "and then, in the street-car, one of the bags burst and I lost the oranges."

He tried to soothe her, of course: what did a few oranges matter? "But it's such a waste," she insisted, "they cost five cents each."

As a matter of fact she had also bought some bananas, the price of each in cents being the same as the number she bought, and their loss would have been more serious. As she paid 89 cents altogether for the bananas and oranges, you can probably figure out how many oranges she bought.

Tuesday's answer: Miss Brent ate six candies.

Bull fighting to them is something to warm the soul. That's what our understanding guide told us as we entered the arena to witness part of a program of amateur bull fighting.

So we did our best to hide the greenness around the gills which came after the first animal went through about 10 minutes of pitiful death throes.

And we smiled with true happiness when, after the second of six to kill during the afternoon had been dispatched, we were on our way to catch our plane.

We had asked to see a bull fight to make our visit to Mexico complete, and our plane had been held in order that we could get a "taste" of the gory business.

As we said, it was an amateur show where novice matadors were getting experience for a chance at big-time fighting.

Their ring seats about 6,000 whereas the professional shows are staged at the 60,000-seat Plaza Mexico.

Once established in the Plaza circuit, there is big money and great prestige.

We thought the amateur matadors and their quadrilla (teams) had a long way to go.

Now let us look at the ring.

The first bull isn't what you'd call a friendly 600-pound bundle of beef, but he does not appear too enthusiastic about the business at hand.

He livens up some when the banderilleros in their splendid embroidered costumes and trim-cornered hats wave their capes almost under his nose.

Mr. Bull chases his tormentors into their planked safety boxes at the sides of the ring several times.

He is now ready for the first of much blood.

The matador's two picadors enter the ring on horses padded with heavy quilts across the forequarters and along the right flank.

Blindfolded, the horses stand their ground when the bull turns his growing anger on them and charges.

This is according to Hoyle, the idea being that as the bull attempts to gore the horse, the riding picador is able to plunge the three-inch triangular steel point of his lance into the bull's shoulder.

Each picador has three jabs at the bull and the blood is flowing freely by the time they depart in favor of the banderilleros again.

It is now their task to goad the bleeding bull into charging.

Admittedly showing considerable intestinal fortitude, the banderilleros hold fast, side-stepping out of the path of the bull at the last moment and plunge barbed paper-decorated swords into his shoulders in pairs.

Obviously in great pain, the bull now has six of these colored two-foot sticks hooked into him, and the climax is approaching.

The matador, whose costume is similar to that of the banderilleros, but more colorful and spectacular, enters the ring.

He goes through an intricate performance of "passes" in which the enraged bull attempts to run him down and he pivots and swirls away from those goring horns, his red muleta or cape flashing.

Finally, he asks permission of the ring referee to kill the bull.

With sword raised above his head he awaits the rush of the bull.

We take their word for it...

plunges the 30 inches of steel into the neck behind the horns.

Mr. Bull is supposed to give up the ghost at this point, or shortly thereafter.

But in our display, the sword misses the spinal cord and death comes slowly and with great difficulty despite teasing by the banderilleros with their capes.

Professional bull fights, we are told, are better to watch and there is not the cruelty, as we might call it, in the killing of the bulls.

We take their word for it...

Solemn ceremonies honored war dead at Cenotaph Wednesday.

Thousands Pay Heart-Felt Tribute To Nation's Dead in Freedom Wars

More than 4,000 persons, one of the largest crowds in recent years, attended solemn and impressive Remembrance Day services at the Parliament Square Cenotaph Wednesday to honor those who died for Canada.

In other parts of Victoria and district, additional thousands obeyed the command of booming guns, signalling the traditional two minutes of silence.

Veterans of the First and Second World Wars, and of Korea, were in the front ranks of those who paid homage to the fallen.

At Parliament Square, the Canadian Legion distributed 4,000 programs prior to the beginning of the service at 10:45 a.m. The ceremonies, conducted by Rev. Canon T. M. Hughes, were the 22nd conducted since the cenotaph was built in 1926, but the first actual parade and service were held in 1931—in pouring rain.

This year, rain held off, but leaden skies and a chill wind lent a sombre note to the ceremonies. Earlier in the morning Canada's newest jet fighter, the CF-100, roared at low altitude and high speeds over the city.

Services were held in St. Andrew's Cathedral at 10:35 a.m., when a solemn high mass of requiem was sung, with the Bishop of Victoria assisting at the throne and the Rev. H. Mcbrant officiating.

A new cenotaph built by Prince Edward Branch, Canadian Legion, was unveiled on the branch grounds, Dunford Road in Langford, at 10:45 a.m.

Memorial services for civil servants killed on active service were held at the Parliament Buildings Tuesday afternoon.

FRAIL OLD LADY SCOURS PARK

A frail, white-haired lady of 76 "works" in Beacon Hill Park in the misty hours just before dawn.

She scours the grounds, looking for empty bottles and sells them to augment her old age pension.

Her activity came to the attention of city police when a city welfare officer reported an elderly lady was in the habit of sleeping in a Langley Street doorway from about mid-night to 7 a.m.

This morning constables checked up shortly before 7, and the lady explained she was waiting for the bottle exchange to open.

Pensioner Asks 6 Months, Gets 30 Days to Pay Fine

A war pensioner asked for six months to pay his $150 fine today. He got 30 days to find the money.

Found guilty of driving while his ability was impaired by alcohol, Frederick Charles Scott, 3851 Cedar Hill Road, was fined $150 in city police court. A report will be made to the Superintendent of Motor Vehicles.

Scott asked Magistrate H. C. Hall if he could have some time to raise the money and avoid a term in jail.

The request is common and the magistrate usually grants time enough to raise the money.

"How much time do you want?" asked Magistrate Hall.

"How much time can I have?" asked Scott in return.

"How much time do you want?" the magistrate repeated impatiently.

Whatshan Lake Tenders Called

The B.C. Power Commission has called tenders for clearing a narrow strip around Whatshan Lake to allow raising of the lake level four feet.

This will permit needed additional storage in the lake which is 700 feet higher than Lower Arrow Lake where the Whatshan plant is situated and about two miles away.

Whatshan Lake is the storage reservoir for the power project. Water flows through a mile-long tunnel from Whatshan Lake to the power plant on the shores of Lower Arrow Lake.

Deadline for tenders is Nov. 30.

The commission also has called tenders for clearing a right of way for a new 63 kv transmission line from Whatshan to Burton. The line actually will run from Whatshan to Nakusp, about 30 miles.

Clearing is needed only to Burton. From there to Nakusp the line will follow the highway.

Change of Plea In Lottery Case Asked

Accused Now Denies Guilt

A request for a remand and a change of plea was made in city police court today on behalf of George Herbert Goward, charged Monday with conducting a lottery.

Suspected of being an agent for a widespread sweepstakes lottery, possibly part of a gambling operation taking in all of western Canada, Goward was arrested after a chance search of his car by a Saanich policeman, early Monday.

The slight, middle-aged man pleaded guilty when he appeared in court Tuesday following the disclosure that his car was loaded with thousands of books of tickets for international lotteries and other suspect material, still being investigated.

The case was transferred to city court when it was claimed the operations of the alleged lottery were mainly centred in Victoria. Bail, set in Saanich court, was revoked when Goward maintained his lone-wolf crime wave since August 31.

Tall and thin, he is considered adept at squeezing through narrow entrances.

His arrest, following close on the seizure of 18-year-old Donald Gray, who admitted to five local thefts, almost accounts for all recent breaking and entry cases in the city in recent weeks.

Girls! Now You Can Reduce And Have Salad Dressing, Too!

By PENNY SAVER

Wheeee! Now all gals on reducing diets can use salad dressing! No more "doing without" when it comes to that "extra." For 65 pennies you get a bottle of the dressing which has less than four calories in each one ounce serving. Looks something like French dressing, but cross my heart, there's no sugar, oil or fat in it whatever! ... Honest!

Mmm! Hmmm! It's sprinkling time when the stick shows blue, so get out the watering can! If it's pink, just leave it alone until it does turn blue. The "stick" is inconspicuous and is meant for inserting into the soil of your indoor plants. An inch or so of it must show above the soil, and you are warned not to get that part wet or let it get submerged. The price of 25 pennies is all you pay for this indicator that tells you when your plants are thirsty.

It's a thoughtful hostess who leaves a packet of lipstick matches in the powder room for those guests who may have forgotten their own tubes. Then, too, if you haven't been able to discover the shade that's meant for you, it's a cheap way to test the different ones until you find "it." For $1.50 you can purchase a boxful of 15 packets, each a different shade. In each box there's also a pamphlet telling you what colors to wear the different shades with.

That mink jewelry I told you all about last week must be selling well. Seems as if every time I look at the displays, something new has been added! Newest piece (and most attractive piece in my opinion) is a mink choker necklace. A strand of mink has been entwined with a strand of pearls, giving a most luxurious effect.

Mmm... glamorous!

Ice Blue Nylon Chosen By Saturday's Bride

Ice blue nylon net over taffeta with lace inserts formed the bridal gown of Mary Elizabeth Craig, daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. Craig, when she became the bride, Saturday evening, of Maurice Arthur Nugent, son of Mrs. E. Brown, Portland, Ore.

The ballerina-length gown was styled with a matching lace jacket and she wore a shoulder-length veil which misted from a blue headress of lace and net. Johanna Hill roses formed her cascading bouquet.

Rev. G. R. Easter performed the ceremony in First Baptist Church. Mrs. R. Kroeger sang "Because" during signing of the register. Mr. Kroeger played the organ. The bride's uncle gave her in marriage.

Matron of honor, Mrs. P. Smith, wore a lavender gown of net over taffeta with matching taffeta jacket and net cap. She soap.

Window Box Gardening

Many flowers that normally bloom in the spring will be blossoming prematurely this winter on window sills across the country. These indoor flower beds will be the result of "forcing" by a growing number of gardeners who start putting around with bulbs and flower pots just when the backyard gardener is putting away her tools.

Not all of these indoor gardeners have green thumbs. Some will be putting their first bulb this fall. Those who are trying their luck at indoor gardening for the first time will avoid disappointment by selecting such near foolproof varieties as paper white narcissi and roman hyacinths.

Princess Season Starts

Princess Margaret with Anthony Kimmins, the British film director, at a Royal film performance at the Odeon Theatre in Leicester Square recently. (Mirror Pic photo.)

LONDON, Nov. 10 (UPI)—court are wondering when the moment will come when Margaret will read her heart and decide to what man she will propose marriage—she must propose herself unless she chooses a royal prince, and there is no royal prince in sight.

In the social phase she has a retinue of possible suitors ranging from Lord Carnegie who is also of the blood royal to Rev. Simon Phipps, Church of England clergyman whom many regard as a matrimonial dark horse.

The gay and sparkling princess, now 23, has a new hairstyle which sweeps her dark brown hair back from her forehead and over her ears.

She also has some new dresses, new furs and six new pillbox hats for the winter season.

The prospective amendment of the Regency Act, which will relieve Margaret of the enormous burden of being regent for Prince Charles in event that the Queen dies, will give her more freedom to think of her own life.

Dating Married Men Hurts All Concerned

By ELIZABETH B. HURLOCK, Ph.D.

When a young woman goes around with a married man she is almost certain to lose out in the end. He may divorce his wife for her, but she will pay for his love in many ways she does not anticipate. This girl is playing a doubly dangerous game. She says:

(Q) "I am a young woman of 25, and I am going out with a married man who tells me all the time that he is in love with me. My problem is that there is another man who also tells me he is in love with me. He, too, is married and has two children. These two men are jealous of each other. What am I going to do? One of them is always telling me to give up the other, but I don't want to hurt either of them. Should I just forget them?"

(A) Of course you should. You have no right to be going out with men you know are married. No matter how much they tell you they love you, and no matter how jealous they are of one another, you are entirely in the wrong in encouraging them to go with you.

You will hurt many more people than these two men if you keep on seeing them. Have you ever stopped to think that you are the one who will be the most hurt of all?

What is there in these romances for you but a broken heart and a bad reputation? The chances are that either man has any thought of marrying you. Even if one of them had, how would you feel about allowing him to break up his marriage and bring unhappiness to his family?

The wife of the man who won out would suffer, and so would his children. Have you ever stopped to think of how unfair you are being to them? It is not just the jealous man you have to think of but yourself and the family of the man whose wife you are literally stealing. The sooner you give up both of these men, the sooner you can regain your self-respect and a clear conscience.

Elizabeth Hurlock is one of the nation's best psychologists and she will gladly help you with personal problems.

Reds Will See U.S. A-Tests If AEC Member Has His Way

By ELTON C. FAY
WASHINGTON (AP) — An Atomic Energy Commission member suggests that foreigners, presumably including Russians, should see a United States hydrogen bomb exploded as a sample of the destructive alternative to world peace.

The idea, expressed by Thomas E. Murray Wednesday night, came as the U.S. is preparing another and probably fiercer hydrogen test blast, and as Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson talked of "many more discoveries in the atomic age."

Murray made his H-bomb suggestion in a speech at Pittsburgh. He said first-hand observation of an H-bomb's thunder "is an essential qualification for future negotiators of the great survival issues in the years ahead." Such an American showing, he added, might persuade the Russians to match it with a demonstration of their own.

Murray said the AEC hasn't yet studied the idea in detail or reached a decision.

Murray's speech was the first official indication that there is consideration of a plan to let foreign observers watch a major atomic test.

State Supreme Court Judge Matthew Hill said the capsule contained centennial editions of newspapers published in various parts of the state, records of virtually every branch of state government, reports from churches and documents from service clubs and other organizations.

Clash Over Canaries

Clashes between two of the self-styled sages of the Twenty-Sixty Club curtailed the address which dapper, be-spectacled D. R. Rhodes, retired Ottawa civil servant, had prepared on "The Cruelty of Keeping Caged Birds and of Sport Fishing."

"I wish the club passed resolutions and took action on them instead of talking and just talking," said Rhodes, "as this is something about which I feel very deeply."

"FOR THE LADIES' AID"

Ex-steamerboater W. Jacobs glanced at the speaker in disgust, then turned to the chairman.

"Why don't you tell him to save this prissy stuff for the Ladies' Aid," he said. "Baby talk like this is not for this club."

"Well, what I wanted to talk about," said Rhodes, unperturbed by the rebuff, "was the amount of cruelty Victoria women are responsible for."

"HE'S A BIRDWATCHER"

"I am proud to be a bird-watcher like thousands of other people in this city. Birds in their native habitat are the happiest creatures in the world; Nature equipped them with wings so they can blithely soar through space, from tree to tree or migrate from country to country; they are born to be free and unrestrained."

"Then men step into the picture to shoot the larger ones and women delight to confine the smaller ones in cages."

"Stop him! Stop him! He is making me cry," Jacobs interrupted with heavy sarcasm.

"It is a woman who keeps them in cages against whom the charge of cruelty is most pronounced," proceeds Rhodes with a glance of scorn at the steamboat man. "If anyone were to chop the legs off a dog, cries would go up to high heaven and prosecution would follow."

"But this, in effect, is what happens to a canary when it is placed in a cage."

"Its freedom of flight is taken away from it."

"Its God-given wings are rendered useless."

"The cage, to the bird, is a dungeon. The wires are prison bars."

"It is sentenced to solitary confinement for life."

"But they sing so prettily, they must be happy," one woman said to me.

"TWADDLE, SAYS JACOBS"

"How does she know they are singing happily. I have a friend who says, and I have no reason to doubt him, that he can interpret the songs of birds."

Jacobs interrupted again. "You really believe that twaddle?" he asked the speaker in a tone of disgust.

The chairman asked Jacobs

Reading New Aide For Eden

LONDON (UPI)—Prime Minister Winston Churchill last night appointed the Marquess of Reading, 64, to the new post of minister of state, Foreign Office.

Lord Reading will join Minister of State Selwyn Lloyd as a second senior aide to Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden.

At the same time, the Earl of Selkirk, 47, was named paymaster-general to succeed Lord Cherwell, who resigned last week to return to the Oxford University post he held before joining the government.

A. D. Dodds-Parker, 44, was appointed joint under-secretary for foreign affairs, replacing Lord Reading.

MELANCHOLY NOTE

"If you will listen carefully to a singing canary, my friend told me, you cannot fail to detect a melancholy note running through the trills," Rhodes prodded.

"This he describes as 'The Song of Lonesomeness.'

"At another time the song is a mating song, a song of hope and longing for company of its own kind."

"At a time like this its woman owner greets it with some name remark like 'Pretty Dick, Pretty Dick.'

"If the bird could only speak," said Rhodes, "the woman would probably get an earful that would astound her."

FRUSTRATION

"At another time, my friend told me, and says it is as obvious as can be if you know anything of birds, you will note a sorrowful song of frustration. But most frequently you will hear the oft repeated song of lonesomeness, 'The Prisoner's Song' my friend calls it."

"Pretty as they may sound, to those who know no better, the song of the caged canary is actually the most plaintive music on record. Keeping birds caged is among the cruellest things ever practiced."

"I would now like to talk on the cruelty of sport fishing," Rhodes remarked when Jacobs brought his heavy fist down on the table.

"Over my dead body you will," he shouted. "We have had enough of this old women's chatter for one night."

Chief speaker at the regular meeting of Canadian Authors' Association Friday at 8 p.m. at the Arts Centre will be Mrs. Robin Breach, whose subject will be "Around the World in a Freightliner."

WATER BOARD TO STUDY PLAN FOR GOLDSTREAM DEVELOPMENT

Greater Victoria Water Board has tabled a plan submitted by Ald. Brent Murdoch, which would have the board assume responsibility for development of Goldstream Park.

The alderman has made the suggestion on grounds that the board should retain control of the area and not have it turned over to the city or provincial government, as has been proposed before.

His proposal will be discussed in detail by the board at a future meeting.

Reeve Joseph Casey, water board chairman, meantime, has acknowledged the suggestion has "considerable merit," but has gone on record as being opposed to any large expenditure of money on the project.

Gregory Hits Broken SC Promises Denies Own Nomination 'Rigged'

"A government of 'broken promises' was the description applied to the Bennett administration by George F. T. Gregory in his maiden campaign speech at Sir James Douglas School Tuesday night.

Liberal standard-bearer in the November 24 Victoria by-election, Mr. Gregory gathered a crowd of 80 to the first meeting held by any party in the new campaign.

His speech was short and deliberate as Mr. Gregory with finesse acquired as a city lawyer sought to prove the government guilty of abandoning labor, discriminating against the wage earner and over-taxing the general public.

He quoted from pre-election

FRIG COLD WATER SOAP
LONG LIFE FOR SILK. HOW WHEN WASHED IN FRIG. TEST FRIG TODAY. FRIG SAC-FAC 322

promises of the Social Credit party amendments to the Industrial Conciliation and Arbitration Act, a voluntary hospital insurance scheme and a reduction in taxes.

The government didn't even introduce an amendment to the ICA Act, it forced the wage-earner to pay BCHIS premiums and refused to prosecute other classes if they did not pay, and it increased taxes on industry, plans to tax machinery and placed an additional tax on liquor.

He added that Finance Minister Gunderson must take responsibility for the increase in taxes.

PEOPLE IGNORED

Turning to the 10 per cent tax on liquor by the glass, Mr. Gregory stated: "The government did not have the courage to carry out the plebiscite of the people taken in 1952. The people showed they were in favor, but the government hedges with the 10 per cent tax."

Mr. Gregory answered city Socreds who, he said, were broadcasting that his election had been rigged and he was part of a political machine.

He said that his nomination was in accordance with the constitution of the party and was the only one filed at the time set for nominations to close, when it was logical to assume he would be the candidate.

He taped an acceptance speech in advance of the nominating convention last Thursday and because the meeting was delayed in starting, the speech was aired a few moments before he actually accepted the nomination at the meeting.

Political adversaries, he said, spread the news abroad that he was "a cog in a Liberal machine" and asserted the nomination had been cut and dried before the meeting.

WHAT SOCRED'S DID

Mr. Gregory challenged the Socreds to tell what happened at their nominating meeting: "It's rumored they never had one at all . . . but that the gallant Percy Wright, with nothing more than the authority of a meeting at which further nominations were not even called for, sent a personal cable to Mr. Gunderson in Peru, offering him the nomination."

YOUNG BUCKS AT SCHOOL

Two Zoo Deer at UBC To Be Diet Guinea Pigs

By DAVE STOCK

Two yearling deer from Beacon Hill Park left on the midnight boat Monday to take a course at college.

The course will require them to eat a well-balanced diet of nourishing food.

The two young bucks are to be delivered to the department of zoology at University of B.C., so records can be kept of a deer's growth when he's properly fed.

Charles Guiguet, biologist at the provincial museum, who helped crate the animals for shipment across the gulf, says the animals are in for a "treat."

When UBC first requested the animals, several local residents asked city aldermen not to give them away, fearing the deer might come to some harm at the university.

Mr. Guiguet gave assurance today the deer will be given the best of treatment.

Reason for UBC's department of zoology keeping deer is so it can compare the growth and size of deer that are given proper food with the animals of the same age being taken out of the woods.

Mr. Guiguet said one two-and-one-half-year-old buck, who has been boarding at UBC since he was a yearling, now weighs 210 pounds, has a great rack of four-point antlers and is regarded as a prize specimen.

Deer taken from the woods are scrawny by comparison, he said.

Currently, all deer taken out of the Sayward district are being measured and weighed so

Help By Scouts Well Repaid By Grateful People

A good turn by nine Scouts of the Deep Cove Troop boomeranged this week. It returned in the form of a welcome gift to buy camping equipment.

The boys had undertaken to help an elderly resident at Towner Park with his gardening. Aided by a tractor loaned to them by one of their fathers, they hauled in enough wood to last a winter, dug the garden and swept the leaves.

Aided by a friend, the man who in one day had work done that would have taken him all winter, have sent $20.50 to Scouter Jim Redwood to help the boys to camp.

Casey Claims Foe Tried to Halt Project

A charge that Councillor E. P. Cummins continually attempted to thwart the progress of the $2,500,000 sewage project in Saanich, is made by Reeve Joseph Casey.

The reeve's charge follows a claim made by Mr. Cummins, who is contesting the reeveship in Saanich in the December elections, that the sewer project is lagging.

Mr. Cummins has also alleged that some aspects of the sewer project are proving more costly than stipulated in the by-law approved by ratepayers.

Reeve Casey, who is seeking re-election, has often clashed with Councillor Cummins at council meetings on progress of the sewer project. It is one of the main issues in the election campaign.

Reeve Casey says his opponent, at council meetings continually opposed the purchase of new equipment for the sewer project which was necessary to carry out the work efficiently.

CHRISTINE WEARING ARTIST'S RING

WASHINGTON (AP) — Patrick Flanigan, a 26-year-old artist, Wednesday, confirmed reports that Christine Jorgensen is wearing a three-quarter carat diamond ring he gave her.

Jorgensen, the former soldier who claims to have been transformed into a woman by surgery, is entertaining at the Sahara Hotel in Las Vegas, Nev.

Flanigan wouldn't say his gift was an engagement ring. He's getting a divorce from his wife and it hasn't come through yet, he explained.

COSTLY RING STOLEN

A gold ring centred with a sapphire surrounded by 30 diamonds was stolen from the home of Miss E. M. O'Rourke, 1007 Pakington Place, while she was away during the last four months, city police reported today.

Reeve Casey says his opponent, at council meetings continually opposed the purchase of new equipment for the sewer project which was necessary to carry out the work efficiently.

Cancer Clinic Search Detects 20 New Cases

Twenty new cases of cancer were detected during October at the Victoria Cancer Clinic. It was announced today, and early treatment made possible.

Sixteen of the new cases are from Victoria and the balance from Gulf and other Island points. Four more are still undergoing investigation.

A total of 731 X-ray treatments were administered during the same period and 193 previous patients received follow-up examinations.

Ike's Popularity Down 10 Points in Six Weeks

By American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N.J. — President Eisenhower's political honeymoon era has ended.

The first significant downward turn in the President's personal popularity since his inauguration shows up in the most recent coast-to-coast audit by the American Institute of Public Opinion.

Today, 65 per cent of the nation's voters approve of the way Mr. Eisenhower is handling his job as President, compared to 75 per cent approving six weeks ago.

Thus, one year before the crucial congressional elections, the President continues to enjoy substantial support from the people, although registering a 10-point drop from his all-time high in popularity reported in mid-September.

While the President has lost some ground in every major population group in the country, the largest defections since the September report are found among farmers and independent voters.

In gauging the President's popularity at regular intervals, the institute had field reporters across the country ask a representative cross-section of voters:

Do you approve or disapprove of the way Eisenhower is handling his job as President?

The vote today and the trend of sentiment over the first nine months of the Eisenhower administration are shown in the following table:

On grounds of prudent finance Canada maintained for a longer time than did the United States its high wartime levels of taxation. It did this to control inflation, to cut the national debt and to run a revenue surplus during a period of high business activity in order to be possibly ready to deal with a possible recession.

Canada held prices down more firmly during the war than did the United States and then, after the war, released private enterprise from governmental controls sooner and more rapidly than did the United States.

Canada is encouraging a sharply expanding economy. It has assimilated and put to work 800,000 immigrants since the war. Canada's gross national product is up from $11,700,000, St. Laurent in 1945 to $23,000,000 this year and new capital investments were $200,000,000—or nearly one quarter of the gross national product in 1952 alone.

President Eisenhower may be asked to admire Canada's achievements of fiscal conservatism and shudder at its record of social experimentalism. They both come from the same people. It should be an interesting trip.

INDIAN KILLED

It is noted that he had even conformed riding in the car.

"I was back in Victoria hours before the accident," he was quoted as saying.

Inquest into the deaths of Cross and Johnston will open at 10:30 a.m. Friday at McCall's funeral parlors. A jury will be sworn, the bodies viewed and the inquest adjourned to a later date. Dr. E. C. Hart, coroner, indicated today.

Inquest date into the Pelky death has been set for 10:30 a.m. Monday at McCall's.

RCMP today said investigations into the accident were proceeding and that no decision has been made in regard to possible charges.

THE CORPORATION OF THE DISTRICT OF SAANICHE
ZONING BY-LAW
NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING

NOTICE is hereby given that all persons who are interested in the proposed The Zoning By-Law, 1941, Amendment By-Law, 1953, No. 1, of the Corporation of the District of Saanich will be afforded an opportunity to be heard on the matters contained in the proposed Zoning By-Law at a public hearing to be held in the Council Chamber, Municipal Hall, Royal Oak, B.C., on Friday, November 13, 1953, at 8 p.m.

Today's noon total reached $175,500 or 83 per cent of the $210,686 objective.

Organization of the lagging campaign has resulted in the beginning of a long-delayed employee canvass at Victoria Machinery Depot Ltd. An additional $400 has been collected from the public employees section of the drive.

A pensioner who could give nothing else sent a pair of men's work boots. They were gratefully accepted and turned over to one of the 16 agencies depending on the chest.

Smith Resigns
To Be Candidate

Ald. J. Donald Smith was scheduled to resign from City Council at the conclusion of this council meeting this afternoon so that he can become a candidate for mayor in the December 10 election.

Ald. Smith is one of three aldermen and one outsider intending to oppose Mayor Claude Harrison in the December poll.

His resignation today was necessary so that a by-law to fill his unexpired term could be called.

His resignation means five aldermen, instead of four, will be elected this year. The person taking his place will serve for only one year.

Greater Victoria School Board has trimmed $25,000 off its estimates for a new school building program which will be submitted to ratepayers in December.

The board has reduced its estimate from $3,410,700 to $3,385,700.

The $25,000 saving has been brought about through revision of plans for the Marigold school, which was to have cost an estimated $234,200, but which now will cost about $219,200.

ROOT OF MOST EVIL

Money Major Cause
Of Divorce in U.S.

By NORMA MOHR

CHICAGO (UPI) — Judge Julius H. Miner, "mender of broken marriages," believes money problems account for more than 60 per cent of divorces.

Sexual incompatibility is "very infinitesimal" in its contribution to broken homes, he said.

Financial troubles often lead directly to legal justifications for divorce, Judge Miner said.

It happens this way:

"The man makes just barely enough money to make ends meet. The wife wants a new dress but he can't afford it. She starts to nag. It gets unbearable for him. He hits her. That's cruelty. So she's got grounds for divorce.

"Or maybe money problems lead him to the tavern every night. That's drunkenness.

CHARACTER PLAYS PART

Or the man can't face the burden of financial arguments. He leaves home and it's desertion.

"Lack of character" in a wide variety of forms is in second place as a home-breaker, Miner said. In this category he puts "aloofness, selfishness, domination and callousness."

Other reasons for divorce are only minor, Judge Miner said.

"Sex is highly exaggerated. Not even as many as 5 per cent of divorces can be blamed on bad sex relations," he said.

Council was somewhat at a loss to know how to handle the Wright case, as there was no precedent as a guide.

Ald. J. Donald Smith said today he would propose that the question be submitted as a referendum when citizens go to the polls Dec. 10.

It stems from the recent controversy over Percy Wright, who ran and was elected to the provincial legislature; was refused leave of absence, and refused re-instatement as assistant city clerk when he subsequently resigned his elected post.

Council was somewhat at a loss to know how to handle the Wright case, as there was no precedent as a guide.

Ald. Smith thinks the result of a referendum vote would provide future councils with a guide.

"The people were never so well informed on this issue as they are right now," Ald. Smith said. "I think this is the opportune time for council to get an expression of public opinion on the question."

Warden Allowed
To Censor Mail

OAKALPA Prison Warden Hugh Christie has been given power to open and censor all letters to and from prisoners under revised regulations for B.C. jails.

The revision is the first since 1950.

Under the old regulations, the warden had to get consent to open and examine letters from the prisoner.

But the new regulation, effective with the new year, gives the warden power to open and censor all letters to and from prisoners.

It states: "Letters which, in the opinion of the warden, contain matter which is objectionable may be destroyed, returned to the sender, or withheld until imprisonment expires," at the warden's discretion.

It is the first time the warden has been given power to open and censor all letters to and from prisoners.

The case of Harry Dexter White aroused great interest in London. Many newspapers lengthily criticized Attorney-General Herbert Brownell and Rep. Harold Velde, chairman of the un-American activities committee which subpoenaed Truman.

The Liberal News Chronicle said America's political reputation had been seriously damaged by what it called an "explosion of political rowdiness."

The Times said Republican leaders had gone hunting

Tuesday with Otto MacDonald, also of Campbell River, and failed to meet MacDonald later at a previously arranged time and place.

Const. Ian Hall of Parksville and his dog "Tip" were called for the Wednesday search. The dog located the body at 7:30 a.m.

RCMP said death was from natural causes.

TORY LEADER OWN MANAGER

Progressive Conservative leader Deane Finlayson, a candidate in the Nov. 24 Victoria by-election, figures he is big enough (about 6' 3") to handle two jobs in a campaign.

He is acting as his own campaign manager.

Monte Drake is his official agent, and party workers have been formed into several committees to handle specified tasks in the campaign.

F. E. Winslow is campaign manager for Liberal George Gregory, Percy Wright for Socred Finance Minister Einar Gunderson and Fred Bevis for CCFer Alfred Matthews.

GOT BABY DRUNK

TORONTO (CP) — George Prince, 30, of Toronto, Tuesday was sentenced to two months for getting his 16-months-old daughter drunk on wine. Constable Maurice Wilson testified the boy "was in a terrible temper and there was an odor of wine on her breath" when he took her to hospital November 1.

Farmers to Talk Of Tariff Barrier To Check Dumping

Tariffs to stop the dumping of U.S. farm products into British Columbia, will be discussed at the annual convention of the B.C. Federation of Agriculture at the Empress Hotel on Nov. 26 and 27.

Delegates representing 20,000 B.C. farmers, and federal and provincial agricultural officials will attend the convention.

This is the first time the convention has been held in Victoria. It is being held here in order to give the non-delegate rank and file farmers on Vancouver Island a chance to discuss with farmers from the mainland some of the problems facing agriculture today.

Some of the subjects to be discussed at the convention will be with regard to rising operational costs, price support and problems relating to the marketing of farm products in the province and abroad.

Answer to Previous Puzzles

Premier Tells
'Falsehoods'
Tory Charges

Premier W. A. C. Bennett's "deliberately calculated falsehoods" have reduced the status of the premiership to an "unprecedented low level." Progressive Conservative Leader Deane Finlayson, a candidate in the Nov. 24 by-election, told a party workers' meeting.

"When is Premier Bennett going to start telling the truth?" Mr. Finlayson asked.

The PC leader said the premier's statement that his government has reduced taxes $3,000,000 in 16 months is an "insult to the citizens of Victoria."

Mr. Finlayson said the premier apparently is ignoring the new taxation he piled on at the last session.

"How can he reconcile his statement with the mortal blow dealt veterans' organizations. His finance minister, who is a candidate in this election, slapped on crippling taxes on liquor sales in veterans' clubs."

A reduction in this revenue, he said, means veterans' clubs will have to curtail their charitable work among veterans, widows and children.

Under the new assessment equalization plan, he said, veterans' clubs' furniture and equipment will be taxable.

He deplored the fact veterans' clubs are lumped in with all other types of clubs under one classification. Previously, veterans' clubs had separate recognition, he said.

Mr. Finlayson, a former president of a legion branch, said he's alarmed at the Bennett government's attitude toward ex-servicemen.

'Now, This Medal Is for the Boer War . . .'

Youthful wonder and admiration shine in the eyes of 10-year-old Barry Scott, 1403 Bewdley, as he hears about medals worn by Samuel Murray, 72, 1408 Beatty. Mr. Murray wears decorations earned in Boer War and two World Wars. Barry is a member of Rainbow

Magsaysay New President Of Philippines

Announces All-Out Fight on Communism

MANILA (UP) — President Elpidio Quirino conceded defeat here today as mounting returns indicated that voters who think "it's time for a change" had elected Ramon Magsaysay, new president of the Philippines, by a margin of nearly 2 to 1.

Returns representing about 60 per cent of the total vote showed the victorious Nationalist candidate leading by 1,815,188 votes to 798,022. Mounting congressional returns indicated that Magsaysay will have strong support in the Senate and probably will control the House of Representatives.

Quirino, in conceding, offered Magsaysay his "good wishes" and wryly offered "a prayer... that the change is for the better."

President-elect Magsaysay expressed thanks for the outgoing president's good wishes, and called on "all Filipinos to work together as one people."

Magsaysay promptly sought to recruit former ambassador to the United States Carlos P. Romulo for his new administration, asking whether he would like to return to the Washington post. Romulo withdrew from the presidential race to throw the support of the democratic party to Magsaysay.

UNCONDITIONAL

The president-elect said his government will do its best to convince other Asiatic nations "that there can be neither 'independence' nor 'neutrality' in the face of aggressive Soviet imperialism in Asia."

Magsaysay said his regime will deal with Reds "on the basis of 'all-out force and all-out fellowship' — slogan recalling his campaign as defense secretary against Communist guerrillas here."

"Militant Communism and its armed challenge to the authority of the republic must be forced into unconditional surrender," he said.

Magsaysay said he favors the idea of a "Pacific pact" in principle, but sees no likelihood of any such alignment coming into being in the near future because of a lack of "community interest" among Asiatic nations.

Magsaysay plans to visit the United States before the end of November, an aide said today.

Eisenhovers Leave For Ottawa Visit

American Writer Paints Glowing Picture of What President to See

WASHINGTON (UP) — President and Mrs. Eisenhower will leave by train today for a three-day trip to Ottawa.

Mr. Eisenhower is scheduled to address the Canadian House of Commons Nov. 14. The Eisenhovers are scheduled to arrive in Ottawa at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

The following dispatch by a well-known writer of the New York Herald Tribune gives an American writer's view of what President Eisenhower will find on his Canadian visit.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON — When President Eisenhower visits Ottawa tomorrow and Saturday, the Canadians will undoubtedly be asking him a number of anxious questions — about the St. Lawrence Seaway, about the balance of Canadian-American trade, about lower tariffs.

What will be equally interesting will be the kind of questions which Mr. Eisenhower may want to ask the Canadians and the answers which his host, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, and his cabinet colleagues are likely to give.

When Mr. Eisenhower broods over his own problems of delayed tax reduction, the mounting national debt and still unbalanced federal budget, he can hardly fail to ask himself: How do they do it just across the border?

He has no doubt about it — Canada has done it and the President's face will certainly light up when he has a chance to take a first-hand look at the Canadian record — at the prudent, disciplined way the Canadian Government has ordered its finances while faced with exactly the same post-war and Korean-war problems as we have had here in the United States.

TRUMAN REFUSES TO BE CALLED

Former President Will Ignore Subpoena From Un-American Committee Over White Case

NEW YORK (AP) — Former President Truman said today he will not heed a subpoena to appear Friday before the House of Representatives un-American activities committee.

In a letter to committee chairman Harold Velde, Rep. III, which Truman read to a press conference today, he said:

"In spite of my personal willingness to co-operate with you, I am constrained by my duties to the people of the United States to decline to reply."

New Parliament Warned Huge Arms Costs Stay

THIRD TRAFFIC DEATH

Indian Killed In Car Crash

Ignatius Pelky Dies on Pat Bay Highway;
Two Dead, One Near Death in Smash-Up

Death of an East Indian, Ignatius Pelky, early today brought to three the total of violent deaths in the Victoria area over the Armistice Day holiday, and to seven the province-wide accident toll.

A fourth Island man, Ernest Anderson, 45-year-old Campbell River logger, died on a hunting trip of natural causes.

The Victoria death total rose to three when Pelky, 40, member of a well-known Indian family, died in hospital at 6:20 a.m. today. He was flung from a car wrecked on the Patricia Bay Highway, early Wednesday morning.

Killed in a violent collision shortly before 5 p.m. Tuesday on the Goldstream Hill, Island Highway, were:

Stanley John Cross, 46, of 132 Dallas Road, a shipping agent for George Paulin Ltd.

Donald B. Johnston, 34, a Canadian customs officer and RCAF veteran who lived at 810 Metchosin.

Still in St. Joseph's Hospital at dusk Tuesday, he was in "very poor condition," Lester B. Jones, 59, of 2571 Blackwood, critically injured in the same accident. He had not regained consciousness at press time today.

A brother of the late Albert Jones, former circulation manager of the Victoria Daily Times, the injured man suffered a skull fracture and other injuries. He is CNR wharf agent at Cowichan Bay.

FLUNG FROM CAR

Pelky died in Rest Haven Hospital, Sidney, from a ruptured stomach, suffered when thrown from a car that went out of control on the East Saanich Road by the Pat Bay Airport at around 4 a.m. Wednesday.

R RCMP said that the old-model Oldsmobile driven by Ralph Jackson, RR 1, Victoria, went out of control and turned over several times on a curve.

The Indian was catapulted from the car and landed 40 feet where it stopped. Mounties said the car, considered a total wreck, was owned by Phyllis Anne Halton, Metchosin Road, RR 1, Victoria.

Captain Bernard R. McKay, 56, an airman pilot, fourth person in the car shattered in the Goldstream accident, was reported in fairly good condition at Royal Jubilee Hospital today. He suffered scalp wounds and possible chest injuries.

On top of all this the Canadian parliament was able to carry through modest tax cuts twice this past year, some in January and some in July.

That's not bad! To President Eisenhower and other American visitors it must seem very good. And the Canadians would offer the president the following explanation of how these achievements were brought about:

Canada Founds Station For Sighting 'Saucers'

OTTAWA (CP) — Canada has launched a highly-technical research program to learn whether the earth has had interplanetary visitors during the last few years.

A wrecker truck had to be used to lift the metal away from Cross and Johnson, both in the front seat, before their bodies could be extricated.

— Jones and McKay were riding in the back seat of the wrecked vehicle.

The entire Colwood RCMP detachment was called into action for this accident. Traffic was rerouted over roads leading to the Goldstream Hotel.

All four in the car were returning to Victoria after visiting the ship Loch Garth at the top of the hill.

Eisenhowers Leave For Ottawa Visit

American Writer Paints Glowing Picture of What President to See

WASHINGTON (UP)—President and Mrs. Eisenhower will leave by train today for a three-day trip to Ottawa.

Mr. Eisenhower is scheduled to address the Canadian House of Commons Nov. 14. The Eisenhowers are due to arrive in Ottawa at 11:30 a.m. Friday.

The following dispatch by a well-known writer of the New York Herald Tribune gives an American's view of what President Eisenhower will find on his Canadian visit.

By ROSCOE DRUMMOND

WASHINGTON.—When President Eisenhower visits Ottawa tomorrow and Saturday, the Canadians will undoubtedly be asking him a number of anxious questions—about the St. Lawrence Seaway, about the balance of Canadian-American trade, about lower tariffs.

What will be equally interesting will be the kind of questions which Mr. Eisenhower may want to ask the Canadians and the answers which his host, Prime Minister Louis St. Laurent, and his cabinet colleagues are likely to give.

When Mr. Eisenhower brooks over his own problems of delayed tax reduc-
